MORE THAN ANCESTOR WORSHIP

BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29.—The twenty-fifth annual congress of the National Society of the daughters of the American Revolution, held in Continental hall here, has just adjourned. The daughters, of whom there are now a quarter of a million, have returned to their various communities with new suggestions and ideas for their local activities in "cherishing, maintaining and extending institutions of America, and fostering true patriotism and love of country."

While much publicity has been given the genealogical research work of the organization, few people are aware of the practical activities of the society. In the present preparedness campaign alone the D. A. R. is a considerable factor, standing ready to provide a generous supply of nurses, hospital equipment and other aid within its scope and influence.

Active in War

During the Spanish-American war the organization was still in its infancy. Nevertheless, it contributed a thousand nurses and over 30,000 hospital garments; spent $200,000 in purchasing delicacies for sick soldiers and looking after their families, in addition to which it presented a steam launch to the hospital ship Missouri to be used in transporting sick soldiers to and from the vessel. Two years ago, when war with Mexico appeared inevitable, the society immediately notified the president of its desire to do its share of patriotic service. Now that war is again imminent, the same offer of assistance is forthcoming.

The promulgation of patriotism and the perpetuation of history are the two great motives of the organization. It spends annually many thousands of dollars in improving civic conditions in all parts of the country. Patriotic societies are encouraged among children, who are taught to revere the flag and honor the great patriots of American history. One of these junior societies, "Children of the Revolution," is composed of youngsters whose heredity makes them eligible for membership in the D. A. R. or Sons of the Revolution when they become twenty-one. Another society, known as "Children of the Republic," was organized especially for immigrant children who are properly awed by the nobility and greatness of Uncle Sam and are enthusiastic in their pledges of allegiance to the flag.

Death on Hyphens

No other organization has done so much to eliminate the hyphen among immigrants in this country. The D. A. R. has established citizenship and history. The Connecticut chapters of the society have published an immigrants' guide in four different languages, including Italian, Polish and Yiddish. This guide is a sort of United States almanac, giving the laws and institutions of the country; the value of lands available for settlement; the locations of foreign settlements in various states; the approximate cost of staking land

Sinn Feiners Charged by King's Troops in Stephens Green and One Force Is Cut Off

DISTURBANCES OCCUR ELSEWHERE

Sinn Fein Agents Who Attempted to Start Revolt in Cork Are Promptly Arrested

STORY OF FIRST FIGHT TOLD

Women in First Body of Rebels Who Moved on Stephens Green and Put Up Defenses

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, April 29.—Amid roaring flames that threatened to sweep this city of more than half a million inhabitants British troops and Sinn Fein rebels engaged in a furious hand to hand struggle until an early hour yesterday.

The rebels, routed by the government troops, scurried away as dawn broke upon the blackened ruins of Sinn Fein strongholds in the heart of Dublin. In their flight they were mowed down by Maxims and rifle fire and lost heavily. It is now estimated that more than 100 persons were killed, or are missing as the result of the four days of street fighting.

The militia apparently are now in control of the situation though the disorders are not yet completely quelled. A ring has been thrown around the rebel forces who seem to be disheartened by their failure to arouse a general uprising throughout Ireland.

Late Thursday night as the troops began closing in, the rebels started numerous fires in the heart of the city. They evidently planned to start a great conflagration, hoping to escape in the resulting confusion.

Troops were rushed into the blazing portion of the city with instructions to extinguish the flames and kill all Sinn Feiners who opposed their work. They had scarcely begun work when they were subjected to fusillades from the roofs of downtown buildings.

There followed a battle that for picturesque features eclipsed anything seen on the European war fronts. Blasts of smoke and flame hid the buildings in the hands of the Sinn Feiners from sight, rolling away a moment later to disclosing groups of men, standing bolt upright on the roofs, firing down on the government troops below.

Outlined Against Flames

It was reckless work. The figures of the Sinn Feiners lined against the background of darkness by the leaping tongues of flame, made them easy targets. One after another of the rebels was picked off by the government troopers, firing from the shadows of the streets.

The general post office, headquarters for the rebels, and the customs house, escaped unharmed by the flames which stopped just short of these principal structures.

The work of cleaning out the snipers is proceeding systematically, the British troops taking care to avoid all possible damage to public property, or injury to non-combatants.

The present warfare resembles London's Sidney street riots. The rebels, from behind barricades and from the windows of houses, are intermittently fusillading, or sniping at government troops.

Looting In Progress

Extensive looting was in progress in the principal part of Dublin before troops closed in on the rebels. Women and children took part in the looting carrying off groceries and clothing from raided stores.

Later several jewelry shops on Sackville street were smashed open

SATURDAY NIGHT

SCOTT EXPECTED TO DEMAND HELP IN VILLA CHASE

BY E. T. CONKLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

EL PASO, Texas, April 29.—Refusal to withdraw the United States forces from Mexico until Villa is taken, and demands that the railroads and other facilities be granted the American expedition are expected to be among General Scott's proposals when he meets Carranza War Minister Obregon in the first formal conference today.

Indications were that the Washington administration would even welcome a temporary peaceful protectorate over Mexico until the bandits are exterminated and the border raid menace forever removed. This plan, which would involve the policing of northern Mexico by United States troops, is opposed by Obregon.

Forces Mobilized

While preparing for the conferences, both the American and the Carranza military forces have been mobilized in positions to make any showings of strength that the situation might require. However, intervention or a break with Carranza is not being considered by administration officials here. Reinforcement of General Pershing's expedition has been continuous for the last twenty-four hours. There are now said to be more than 16,000 United States troops inside Mexico, strung closely along the line of communication from Columbus to San Antonio.

The Carranza army, garrisoning Chihuahua and Sonora states is said to number close to 40,000.

Generals Scott and Funston paid Obregon a formal call in Juarez last night. Scott, Funston and Obregon conversed for nearly an hour. No intimation of the subjects discussed was announced except that Obregon had consented to return the call in El Paso today.

Obregon has expressed confidence that the United States would see the justice of the Mexican demands for a speedy withdrawal of the expeditionary forces. He is ready to promise any degree of co-operation to that end.

PLANTS OF MILLING FIRMS DESTROYED

ST. BONIFACE, Manitoba, April 29.—The mills, offices and 400,000 bushel elevator of the Rice Milling company of Chicago was destroyed by fire. About 300,000 bushels of grain burned.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., April 29.—A mysterious fire today totally destroyed the Lake of the Woods Milling company with a loss of $500,000.

SUES FOR SMASH THROUGH WINDOW

Frank Strupp, proprietor of a confectionery store at 125 South Third street, today began suit in circuit court to recover damages of $124.75 from R. E. McAdams, Melrose. McAdams lost control of an automobile he was driving on Third street on the morning of December 20, 1915. The machine crashed through the confectionery window.

GERMANS RESUME DRIVE ON VERDUN IN HEAVY ATTACKS

Attack on Keystone of Defenses Northwest of Fort Vaux Stopped by Grenade Counter Attack

WIDE SECTOR BETWEEN FORTS

Teuton Force Emerges on Douaumont-Vaux Line But Is Reported Driven Back

PARIS, April 29.—The crown prince resumed the drive on Verdun last night with heavy attacks against the French positions on both banks of the Meuse. The Germans launched an attack at 5 o'clock last night against Hill 304, the keystone of the French defenses northwest of Verdun. The war office announced today that this assault was stopped by a grenade counter-attack.

On the right bank of the Meuse, the Germans delivered an even more violent attack east of Thiaumont farm, but were driven back, suffering heavy losses.

The fighting on the east bank of the Meuse, north and northeast of Verdun, spread from the river itself to the French positions around Douaumont and Vaux village. On this wide sector savage fighting raged throughout yesterday.

Following the most violent artillery preparation and an intense curtain of fire, the Germans charged the French front east of Thiaumont, where they have suffered frequent defeats. Liquid fire was sprayed upon the French advanced trenches as the Teutons advanced, but they were met by steady streams of shrapnel and thrown back with heavy losses.

Another German force, emerging from the northern fringe of Caillette wood, attacked heavily on the Douaumont-Vaux line, but was thrown back without a gain.

The Germans confined their infantry activities on the west bank of the Meuse to the attack on Hill 304. The French artillery was most active while this engagement was in progress, French shells blowing up a German munition depot. The Germans shelled Avocourt, Esnes and French positions on Hill 304 during the day.

High Sea on the Green Disastrous For Coaling Skiff

There was a high sea on Goose Green yesterday afternoon, and as a result Mrs. Augustine Pfannes, 730 Kane street, is suffering from several cuts on the head.

Mrs. Pfannes was navigating in a skiff to her woodshed base of supplies, when a comber caused her to lose her balance and she went overboard into the two feet of water.

There were rocks on the bottom.

ADDITION TO THE MASONIC TEMPLE WILL COME SOON

That enlargement of the Masonic temple on Eighth and Main streets is contemplated in the not-distant future became known today when it was announced that the Masonic Hall association has arranged the purchase of land immediately back of the present temple. The deed by which the additional property passes to the Masonic Hall association was to be signed this afternoon.

The property purchased is of 75-foot frontage on Eighth street, 145 feet deep. It was sold to the Masons by Charles and Martha Farnham, who have lived there for many years. The consideration is understood to have been about $3,000.

That no immediate building program is under consideration was the statement today by John E. Langdon, prominent Mason. He said, however, that the association has practically settled that an addition will be made to its present quarters, although no plans have been drawn up and no date set for commencing work.

TOP SAVES THREE WHEN CAR TURTLES ON CAMPBELL RD.

Only the fact that the top of their automobile had been raised to protect them from the driving rain, it is believed, saved three persons from death when the automobile of William Chamberlain, proprietor of the roadhouse formerly owned by Jack Bennett on the Salem road, turned turtle near the ball park on Campbell road at 2 o'clock today. Albert Chamberlain, his sister and Fritz Bachmann were caught under the machine, but the crumpled top kept the weight of the body from them, and they escaped, it is believed, with only bruises.

The three were taken to the residence of Arthur Scharpf, 2209 La Crosse street by Prof. J. R. Moore of the normal school, who passsed in his car just as the three crawled from under the machine.

Chamberlain was driving. He has had the car but a few weeks, and he explained to Professor Moore that he lost control of the machine when it ran over the edge of the highway. There is a deep hollow beside the road into which the machine overturned.

Chamberlain and Bachmann suffered superficial cuts. Miss Chamberlain complained of an injury to her side, and it was feared examination would discover more serious injury.

HALF CENTURY'S RESIDENT OF THE CORNERS IS DEAD

Franz Wuench, a resident of Newburg's Corner for fifty-four years, died at his home Tuesday. Mr. Wuench would have been eighty-six years old May 2. Old age caused his death. Mr. Wuench was born in Laibe, Bohemia. Six children survive. Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock this morning from St. Joseph's Ridge Catholic church. Burial was made there.

CAPITULATION FIRST INSTANCE OF FALL OF GARRISON DURING WAR

TRACK COLLAPSES AS CRACK COAST TRAIN CREEPS BY

East Winona Fill Caves at a New Spot Near the Big Crevasse Ten Seconds After Coaches Clear

WIND IMPERILS DELTA DYKE

River However Is at Standstill and Hope Is Entertained That the Bank Will Hold

Scores of sleeping passengers, among whom were several La Crosse people, were in danger early this morning when a washout occurred in the Burlington embankment near East Winona ten seconds after the crack Burlington coast train, No. 47, passed over the spot. The washout took place at 4 o'clock near the temporary bridge, constructed when 225 feet of track carried away and the Trempealeau Drainage district was flooded. All traffic was immediately stopped, although it was discovered within a few minutes that the break was not as serious as was at first thought. Ballasting material with which the road edged the track held back the pressure of water now severe on the drainage district side of the right-of-way.

Creeping Over Track

Slow orders under which all Burlington trains are operating between the station of Trempealeau and East Winona are believed by officials here to have saved the heavy train from disaster. It was proceeding at less than ten miles an hour over the track near the big crevasse washed out a week ago.

The train contained nearly a score of coaches, the majority of which were sleeping cars. The washout is only a few feet in length and was discovered in time to save part of the embankment foundation. It occurred in a spot which Burlington officials have been watching with fear for a week. Both sides of the track were piled high with sandbags, gravel and rock and this precaution undoubtedly saved the roadbed from total destruction.

The break was discovered by patrols who are stationed along the dyked track day and night. Word was immediately sent to foremen of the relief work and large gangs of men were rushed up. The break was repaired and traffic resumed at 8 o'clock this morning.

River at Standstill

The Mississippi is stationary today with a stage of thirteen and sixtenths feet. Upriver stations report marked fall in some instances, and it is predicted by the government weather bureau that the stream will soon begin to drop from two to three-tenths daily.

Rain which is threatening the upper Mississippi valley today may cause a further rise, however, but without this it is believed that the danger point in the worst flood since the 'eighties has been passed as far as the river itself is concerned.

Dyke Still Imperiled

The danger to the Thompson dyke, the big wall of the Trempealeau Drainage district which is now holding back millions of tons of water from Trempealeau Bay, is not over, it is believed today. That the strong southwestern wind which is blowing is again endangering the dyke and that there is still great possibility of a break was the fear expressed.

The huge amount of work done by the Burlington to prevent a tie up of traffic would probably be undone should the dyke go out. It is the fear of Burlington officials that their 260 foot steel bridge at the mouth of Trempealeau river could not withstand the flood which would sweep into the bay, through the bridge inundating it altogether, and flooding hundreds of acres of land which thus far has escaped.

Captain Thompson, builder of the dyke, and president of the Delta Land company, whose property is now a lake five square miles in extent, returned to La Crosse today.

With the river at a standstill, residents of the flooded districts of

Garrison Surrendered Consists of 2,970 British and 6,000 Indian Troops

Garrison Held in the City Since Late in 1915; British Wish to Hold Strong Position

LONDON, April 29.—The British garrison of Kut-El-Amara, 105 miles southeast of Bagdad, has surrendered to the Turks, it was officially announced today.

The forces surrendering were composed of 2,970 British and 6,000 Indian troops, the war office has announced.

General Townshend had been besieged for more than 140 days when he surrendered.

The capitulation at Kut-El-Amara is the first instance in the present war, and one of the few occasions in more than a century of war, in which a British garrison besieged by the enemy has been forced to surrender.

General Townshend surrendered owing to the exhaustion of the garrison's supplies, it was stated.

The British forces surrendered to the Turks after ineffectual attempts had been made to rush supplies of food to their camp.

General Townshend destroyed all of the garrison's guns and ammunitions before surrendering to the Turks, the war office statement said.

Floods have completely blocked the progress of the relief forces now halted near Felahie, twenty-three miles east of Kut-El-Amara.

General Townshend's force was trapped by the Turks at Kut-El-Amara, 105 miles southeast of Bagdad, early last December after the collapse of the British campaign against Bagdad.

Pushing northward from the Persian gulf region the British under Sir John Nixon, occupied Kut-El-Amara on September 29, 1915. He then advanced rapidly to Dialah, within ten miles of Bagdad. They were beaten back by a large force of Turks on November 26, 1915, and in their retreat on Kut sustained another crushing defeat through the desertion of Arabian volunteers who turned traitors and joined the Turks.

Is Strong Position

General Nixon left Townshend with a force estimated by the Turks at 10,000 men to hold Kut-El-Amara which occupies a position at the bend of the Tigris on rising ground. A large quantity of supplies was left with the forces, and it was believed the arrival of British reinforcements would enable an expedition to march to his relief within a few weeks.

Gen. Nixon did not want to surrender Kut-El-Amara to the Turks because the position, if strongly fortified by the Turks, would bar another British advance on Bagdad.

Nixon Loses Command

Sir John Nixon was subsequently relieved of command of the Mesopotamian forces because of the Bagdad blunder, being succeeded by Sir Percy Lake. British troops, reinforced by veterans from the Dardanelles, then began a march to relieve the beleaguered garrison. Floods, however, interfered seriously with the progress of the relief forces and they have been halted for several weeks more than twenty miles from Kut.

General Townshend's forces kept in communication with the troops attempting to relieve them by aeroplane and wireless. Aeroplanes carried food in condensed form to the besieged garrison and in a desperate attempt to rush supplies to Townshend the British ran a ship up the river under the Turkish fire. The ship, however, ran aground four miles from Kut according to an official statement given out at London last night.

START CAMPAIGN TO LOWER WISCONSIN'S INFANT DEATH RATE

Organized Follow-up Activity to Cut Down Mortality in State Undertaken by Women

AN organized campaign to cut down infant mortality in Wisconsin by a state-wide movement to make Baby Week an introduction to all-year-round follow-up work is being made by the Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs, the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, the Welfare department of Wisconsin Extension division, the Wisconsin Free Library commission, and other agencies interested in public health.

Letters urging this follow-up work have been issued to all the women's clubs of the state, both by the state federation and by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association with the endorsement of the federation officers.

How Montclair, N. Y., a wealthy residential suburb of New York, cut its infant death rate from 84.8 in 1910 to 64 in 1913 as the result of a federal investigation into infant mortality made at the request of Montclair's health officer, the reorganization of a baby clinic and the establishment of systematic visiting nurse service centering its activity on the one congested district of the city, is being cited as an example of what a community can accomplish if it sets about it in the right way.

In the investigation of the 402 babies who were born in Montclair during the year 1912, it was found that the highest baby death rate as well as the highest birth rate was in the fourth ward, the section in which the negro and foreign population resided. By consultations at the baby clinic and by visits of the nurses in the homes, mothers were taught how to prepare feedings and care for their babies with the following results:

In 1912 almost twice as many babies died in the fourth ward as in all the other four wards of Montclair combined. The rate for this ward, 130.4, was more than one and one-half as high as the rate for the town as a whole.

In 1913 the infant mortality rate for the fourth ward was lower than the rate for the second and third wards.

In 1914 the infant mortality rate for the fourth ward was lower than the average for the entire town.

The fact was also noted that while in 1912 diarrhea was the leading cause of infant mortality, not a single baby died from this disease in 1913.

"Wisconsin cities, large and small, residential towns and manufacturing centers can read a lesson for themselves in this story," says the letter sent out by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association to urge similar organized follow-up work. "None of them can boast better natural conditions than prevail in Montclair; yet Montclair found room for improvement and, having found it, set about to make it. The investigation which it made would have been of little value had it stopped there. It was the follow-up work that reduced infant mortality in Montclair."

Elected as Mayor, She Won't Serve

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 29.—Because the position of mayor of the city, to which she had been elected, seemed too high and lordly to her, Mrs. Ellen F. Aldrich refused to be mayor of Sawtelle, Cal. She balked at the eleventh hour, as the oath was about to be taken. She declared she wanted to mingle with the people, and the mayoralty would make this impossible. Mrs. Aldrich formerly lived in Dayton, O.

Cupid Concentrates Efforts And Succeeds In Bagging Many Hearts

(By Dan Cupid.)

LOVELAND, State of Bliss, April 29.—This is the first day in a long time that I haven't been deafened by the roar of those European battles. I've been planning for months to get enough organs booming wedding marches to drawn the cannon; and today they're doing it.

I sort of concentrated on today; and I think I shot up about 20,000 gross of quivers on it. I didn't score that many hearts for today, but you must understand that with the cost of living so high, the average heart has grown very flinty.

I think I did pretty well, though, considering.

Miss Elliott, Miss du Pont, Miss Wood, Miss Walling and Miss Baker are some of the day's choicest trophies, though there are many others quite as charming and sweet, if not so well known, of course.

Now about the weddings today; here they are:

Edith January Elliott, daughter of President Howard Elliott of the New Haven railroad, weds EdmundPendleton Rogers of New York, at Boston.

Ellen Coleman du Pont, daughter of T. Coleman du Pont, the munitions king, weds Hollyday Stone Meeds of Wilmington, Del., at Wilmington.

Elizabeth Brower Wood, daughter of Henry A. Wise Wood, noted inventor, weds John Cyrus Distler of Baltimore, at her home in New York.

Grace Walling, daughter of Commodore Burns Tracy Walling, U. S. N., retired, weds Lieutenant James S. Therland Spore, U. S. N., South Orange, N. J.

Eugenia Griffen Baker, New York society bud and favorite, weds Henry Herbert Jessup at the church of the Heavenly Rest in New York city.

Isabel Morris Curry, of Charlestown, weds Judge Thomas H. Connelly, of the Brighton municipal court, Boston, at Charlestown.

Gretchen MacDowell, of St. Paul, becomes the bride of Otterson Miller, of Brooklyn, at St. Clement's Episcopal church Minneapolis.

Gertrude M. Newcombe, daughter of Charles M. Newcombe, treasurer of the New York Stock Exchange, weds Francis Setters, of Detroit, at New York.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride at half-past eleven this morning by Father William Everett Johnson, of Christ Episcopal church, the bride being given in marriage by her father. The attendants were Miss Alice Parker and Mr. Jay Parsons. Forty persons, relatives and near friends of the bride and groom, witnessed the ceremony.

The marriage ceremony took place in the bay window of the parlor, which had been converted into a green retreat by the use of palms and ferns. At either side were placed tall white wicker vases filled with Easter lilies. The bride entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played on piano and violin by Miss Lois Halik and Mr. Glen Halik. Just preceding the entrance of the bridal party Miss Hazel Strauss sang Cadman's "At Dawning," and after the ceremony she sang "For You Alone," by Geehl.

The bride was charming in a gown of white taffeta trimmed with lace; she carried an arm bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her veil of tulle was held in place with pearls. Miss Parker's gown was of white lace net over yellow taffeta and she carried an armful of sunburst roses.

At noon a wedding luncheon was served to the company by a number of the bride's girl friends, the Misses Bertha Miller, Edith Derr, Lucile Houthmaker, Edna Sorgel, Mary Newburg, Leona Hussa and Beatrice Davies. NORMAL SAPPHONIAN GIRLS ARE HOSTESSES

In the normal gymnasium last evening the Sapphonian literary society gave a party to all the other literary and debating societies in the school. As the girls left nothing undone, the occasion was a gala affair. The members of each society were characterized at last night's party by their special emblems or flower which each wore, and everyone present bore the huge Sapphonian "S" either on arm band or dainty paper cap. Exclusive of the dancing, the specially prepared program made the hit of the evening. The program included solos by Miss Ida Aiken, music by the Episcopalian quartet, and fancy dancing numbers. The small gymnasium was transformed into a cozy restroom for the dancers. Dancing continued until twelve.

SURPRISE PARTY

Yesterday was not Mrs. Will Wimmer's birthday, but nevertheless Mrs. Wimmer was the "victim" of a surprise perpetrated upon her by the members of her birthday club who, laden with baskets, took possession of her home at 120 North Tenth street, with the intention of spending the evening. A picnic supper was served and in the evening five hundred was played. Those in the party were the Messrs. and Mesdames Henry Palmer, A. A. Barr, Harry Taggart, J. N. Ziegler, Jess Howard, John Lier, D. S. Griegg, W. J. Ennison and O. Mattson and Mesdames Nina Rindlaub and Clara Knight.

GERMANIA DANCE

The last of a series of dancing parties at Germania the past season was held last evening and proved to be one of the most enjoyable of all, in the neighborhood of thirty-five couples being present. The stage was decorated with palms, ferns and flowers. A lunch was served in the dining room following the dance.

The senior girls of the La Crosse High school will be guests of the Milwaukee-Downer club at an afternoon company, Monday, May the first, from half-past three to six, at the home of Miss Gertrude Tausche, 503 West avenue south.

QUEEN ESTHER CIRCLE

The Queen Esther circle of the Caledonia Street Methodist church met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Corolla Bangsberg, 610 Mill street, at which time arrangements for the Queen Esther convention to be held at the Caledonia Street church on Saturday, May the 6th, were discussed. This meeting will include Queen Esther representatives from the La Crosse district of the Methodist church. The principal speaker at the convention will be Mrs. Parrish.

TO ENTERTAIN AT COFFEES

Mrs. James Vincent and Mrs. Edward F. Voight will be hostesses at two coffees next week the first on Wednesday and the second on Friday. Both will be given at the home of Mrs. Vincent, 1024 Cass street.

EXHIBITION OF WORK AT BETHANY CENTER

On Thursday and Friday nights of this week, Bethany Center was open to all its friends. The purpose was to show, not any finely finished pieces of work, but to give a fair idea of the work carried on at the Center daily during the past winter.

On the walls were displayed the hand work done by the boys and girls during the past winter, and a table at one end of the room was used to display the work of sewing and crocheting classes.

About two hundred children took part in the program, and this did not include even half of those enrolled in classes, owing to the lack of facilities to handle any larger number.

The program follows:

Grand march in which all took part—Ingred Skagen, Lillian Gaertner, leaders, Miss Alice Naffz, director.

Reading, "The Little Black Eyed Rebel"—Mercy Goldsmith of the Dramatic club.

Doll club with two lullabies—Margaret Burgchardt.

Wand drill, boys 12 to 14—Mr. Harold Ryan.

Little girls' gymnasium class in marching and games—Misses Rupp and Johnson.

Japanese drill by girls over ten—Miss Mildred Leithold.

Reading, "Tommy's Prayer"—Lillian Christopher of the Dramatic club.

Piano solo, "Flower Song"—Edna Mae Rybold.

Part of a camp fire ceremonial meeting—La Crosse Camp Fire, Miss Caddy George, guardian.

Song—Getty Greeney.

Indian dance—Faowa Camp Fire, Miss Naffz, Miss Elsa Miller and Merle Miles.

The Young Men's Gymnasium class acted as ushers.

Miss Linda Bendel was in charge of the music.

The program was largely attended both evenings, as invitations were issued to the parents of all children taking part, as well as the people in the city who expresed an interest in and desire to see the work being done at the Center.

CARD PARTY

Thursday night at K. P. hall the Yeomen of America gave their regular card party, which was well attended by members and friends. Ladies' prizes were awarded to Mesdames Schleichter and C. Hawkins and Miss Bertie Hass. Gentlemen's were taken by Messrs. Gleason and Rohburg and Joseph Frisch. Ice cream and wafers were served.

EASTER DANCE

A most gratifying success, both financially and socially, was the verdict today rendered on the outcome of the Easter dance of the William Doerflinger Company Employes' Mutual Benefit association at Elks' hall last evening. Approximately eighty-five couple danced to the strains of the excellent music of Andre's orchestra, and that everyone had a good time goes without saying.

The committees were as follows:

Floor and reception—Mrs. B. Dunn and the Misses Florence Williams, Emma Stellick and Minnie Swords.

Arrangements—Messrs. Carl Semsch, Carl Burghart, Jule Hoff and Arthur Dusty.

Invitations—Misses KatherineKelly, Elizabeth Horder, Mamie Fries and Anna Sauer.

The next social event of the association will be a picnic some time in July.

TRAVELERS DANCE TONIGHT

The La Crosse Council of the United Commercial Travelers will give a dance at Elks' hall, the last of a series of six similar parties during the past season. A special program is being arranged and the largest attendance of the year is expected. Refreshments will be served in the balcony.

Sues Mail Order Bride for Lingerie

CLEAR LAKE, S. D., April 29.—The suit of Hammond Dean to get back the pretty filmy lace things he bought for his mail order bride was to be heard in municipal court here today. Dean hired two attorneys and a detective. He alleged that immediately after the wedding his bride ran back to Minneapolis.

OLDFASHIONEDMITTS ARE NOWTO BE FOUND ON EVERY FAIR HAND

And as a Result Manicures and Jewelers Are Filled with Glee in Anticipation of Rich Harvest

BY MARGARET MASON

"Permit me now to show my mitt"
Said swagger Helen Hogan,
Then raised aloft her mitted hands,
"Mitts mit uns" is our slogan."

NEW YORK, April 28.—Yes, mitts are now on every hand and what ever will become of all those delicate situations that have to be handled with kid gloves goodness only knows.

If we are going into the old fashioned fashions thoroughly it is only natural that we should look to our hands as carefully as to our hips and you must needs admit that the mitted hand is as much a part of the 1830 modes as the hooped and crinolined skirt.

Black silk mitts and white silk mitts and mitts ecru, grey and pastel tinted are ready to our hands but the really first hand mitt is of all over black lace to add perfection to the frilly old flowered organdies and muslins so reminiscent of old lavender and Godeys Lady's Book.

Not every woman knows that nothing so shows up a hand's imperfections like a mitt, if your nails are not well shaped, your knuckles red or knotty they will be discovered and uncovered in mitts. All the little manicures are already chortling with glee at the rich summer harvest of lady fingers that will be theirs as long as the mitt is destined to wave on the hands of the brave and fair.

Jewelers are also taking notice for rings will no longer hide their light under a kidskin but will twinkle unrestrained on nude digits.

A single old ring, original and unique of design and denoting the personality of the wearer, is most to be desired. The old fashioned cameo rings, coral rings and hair rings are being revived and the whole old fashioned sets of carved coral, cameos and jet are greatly in demand; earrings, brooch, locket, ring and bracelets in their quaint and reminiscent entirety.

Seed pearl sets also are favorites and old fashioned sets of gold, black enameled, and set with pearls are exquisite.

Too many rings of course spoil the mitt, for it is an exponent of the clinging vine or ingenuous innocence mode of dress. One ring on each paddy is quite all that is permissible to her who is a stickler for good taste and the eternal fitness of things. Hence all the more need for care in its selection, individuality and design.

Art jewelers are consequently on their mettle with their metal turning out this costume jewelry.

Happy indeed is the maid who is the proud possessor of an exquisite carved coral set, brooch, earrings, bracelets, ring and back comb all complete, that has been handed down from a great-great aunt.

An object of envy also is the lass who cherishes a black oynx ring set with a pearl as her share of great grandmother's set that has been divided among her sisters and her cousins and her aunts.

But take heart fair ladies who possess no jewel hung family tree, the modern jewelers are no pikers when it comes to imitating antiques, so even you may hail with joy the advent of the mitt.

Yea verily, I believe every woman will, since it leaves her fingers free to stick in every pie.

A woman can adjust her figure to show up best at the point she wants it to.

Training Camp For Women Will Open At Chevy Chase Monday

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29. — The "Women's Plattsburg", with its full first quota of 200 patriotic women, opens Monday at Chevy Chase, just outside of Washington, in Maryland. Ten acres of land has been loaned by Senator Newlands of Nevada as the site for the Women's Service school, and the national convention of the women's section of the Navy League of the United States will be opened on the grounds today at the same time that the 200 women from all parts of the country begin their fifteen-day course of training. First aid is the principal subject to be taught the volunteers. The preparation of food for the sick, sewing, signal work and other important things that women can do in wartime are also included.

The Searchlight

WRITING WITH THE VOICE

A machine is now being perfected which writes sounds as they are transmitted by the human voice. It may revolutionize the professions of typewriting and stenography. The machine includes a system of reeds, each turned to correspond with certain characteristics of the human voice. They are connected electrically to certain keys of a typewriter. The user talks into a receiver and each sound vibrates a magnetic strip which throws a beam of electric light upon a selenium cell. The vibrations vary according to the sound and each moves an electrically controlled pencil bearing upon a cylinder of paper. The pencil produces wavy lines each recording a distinct phonetic chord. A complete alphabet has now been arranged.

Being on the right side in politics means being on the inside.

A CIVIC ENTERPRISE THAT PROVED ITSELF

No more pleasant recollection of last summer remains to La Crosse than of the series of band concerts which were given in the parks. The thousands who gathered about the band-stands for the weekly programs attest that no civic effort in the city's history ever offered a greater appeal, or was more appreciatively received. The park band concert was an experiment no longer than its first trial. It "took" at once.

The TRIBUNE therefore notes with very real pleasure that Alderman A. P Funk, who conceived and effected the concert plan last year, has resumed his activity along this line. Soft, summer-like nights are beginning to lure the people into the open again. The concerts which so greatly add to their enjoyment of the city's breathing spaces cannot too soon be recommended.

As in the year past public funds cannot compass the sustained program which shall spread the park concerts throughout the summer. But with last year's success as proof of its popularity, it is not conceivable that the businessmen who backed the enterprise will fail of equal generosity now. Contributions which last year made possible aphilanthropic experiment this year support an activity that stands upon its merits and its record.

CONCERNING CLEANING-UP

No fuss-and-feathers, no public meetings or bothersome hullabaloo will attend Clean-up Week which next Monday will usher in. Cleanliness, in the minds of the clubwomen whose suggestion has caused the week's designation for general out-of-doors renovation, like the godliness of which it is said to be next of kin, is largely an individual affair. One rakes his lawn and removes the ashes from the alley not so much for the impression upon his neighbor, although there is incidentally something to be said in its favor along that line, as for the general satisfaction that comes of well-kept premises. There is the same quality of personal comfort and self-respect in a tidy home-acre, though it be no more than a twenty-five-foot front, as in fresh linen or a new frock.

A civic duty of no mean proportion attaches to cleaning up, as well as the purely personal benefit thereof. Cleanliness is as imperative to a healthy city as to a healthy man. Flies carry typhoid, and not alone to the careless person to whom they owe their comfortable compost incubator. The bacillus bred in a gill of rainwater caught in that old tin can behind your barn doesn't consider his duty done when he has inoculated only your kiddies with infantile paralysis. There are whole schoolsful of youngsters, sons and daughters of your neighbors, to whom you owe the protection implied in your mutual citizenship.

Municipal health cannot be mysteriously engendered by dissertations upon cleanliness, or aspersions on the man around the corner. It is an outgrowth of a combination of individual self-respect, good citizenship and elbow-grease.

VERSE and REVERSE

Shakespeare

No marble frieze adorned with sculptured fame
Brilliant as human fancy can devise,
No walls of polished stone shall ever rise
Of Poesy the greatness to proclaim;
Nor can the builder's genius ever frame
A vaulted temple roof below the skies
That shall within its spheral arch comprise
Aught of the spaciousness of Shakespeare's name.

This fills the world with a most glorious light
That streams undimmed across the ages past,
Nor suffers it eclipse in passage long;
It shines upon our shores as warmly bright
As on the Mother Land, and to the last
It shall shine on in poet's praise of Song.

—Isaac Bassett Choate in National Magazine.

WANTS TOYS TO TAKE PLACE OF FIREWORKS

CHICAGO, April 29.—The Toymakers' association of America closed its convention here today following the adoption of a resolution to agitate a movement to give toys to children on the Fourth of July instead of firecrackers.

Helping the Game Along

The midnight stillness of the darkened parlor was punctuated by a crash just overhead.

"Wha-wha what was that, dud-dud- darling?" exclaimed the timid young man.

"Merely father dropping a hint," she replied, as she snuggled a little closer.—Judge.

Upward

"You should think of higher things."

"I do. I am entirely unable to keep my mind off the price of meat and gasoline."

The Futility of Knowledge

"You can't make me believe a college education gits you anything," said the young man who had won two medals for fox-trotting.

"Still I always thought college fellows was awful swell," replied the girl.

"Nothin' doin'! We got one of them in our office that always says 'whom' and 'notwithstandin', and say, I heard the boss callin' him down today the worst I ever seen. What's the use knowin' them kind of words if you can't talk back?"—Judge.

Going and Coming

"The word 'reviver' spells the same backward or forward."

It was the frivolous man who spoke.

"Can you think of another?"

The serious man scowled up from his newspaper.

"Tut-tut," he cried contemptuously.

And they rode on in silence.

Modern Military Censorship

"Cannon to the left of them, cannon to the right of them, cannon behind them, volleyed and thundered."

So quoted the enthusiastic war correspondent. But the censor cut out this passage.

"Can't be giving away the positions of our artillery," commented he sagely.—Judge.

Rapid Travel

"What a traveler you have become!" exclaimed a Bostonian meeting an acquaintance at Constantinople.

"To tell you the truth," was the frank reply, "I am obliged to run about the world to keep ahead of my reputation, for the moment it overtakes me I am ruined."

Man's Nearest Friend

The teacher was questioning her class about graduation in the scale of existence and asked, "What comes next to man?" Little Tommy raised his hand anxiously. "Well, Tommy," interrogated the teacher, "what is it that comes next to man?" Tommy, smarting under the sense of a previous defeat, responded: "His undershirt, ma'am."

The Slower Process

The Son—I s'pose you think I'm goin' to the dogs.

The Sire—No, I don't. You're too blamed lazy. You'll just sit around and wait for them to come to you.

No Chance

Aunt—You'll be late for the party, won't you, dear.

Niece—Oh, no, auntie. In our set nobody goes to a party until everybody else gets there.—Boston Transcript.

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE

(By Niksah)

ZUNI

The United States today is coming in for a liberal share of tourist travel. Turning his back resolutely on the seductive thrills held out by the submarine and the Zeppelin, the patriotic American is doing his duty at last by seeing America first. We face the prospect of an America over-run with home-grown tourists, of a south filled with New Englanders viewing Civil war battlefields, and a New England full of southerners taking snap-shots of Plymouth rocks. If the tide rises high enough it may even carry a few stray sightseers to Zuni, New Mexico.

So far Zuni has been permitted to go the quiet tenor of her way undisturbed, although she is one of the most interesting spots in America. Secure behind the firty-five miles of bad road that separates her from a railroad and her lack of any place to put the visitor when he arrives, she lives her quaint life as she lived it 500 years ago.

Zuni is the largest Indian town in the United States. For the southwest, she is almost large enough to be called a city. Her people thrive under American government, a very lively contradiction of the theory that the coming of the white man spells the doom of the red.

In Zuni you see the earliest American development of the sky-scraper—great mud mansion, seven stories high, a perfect hive of humanity. You see the primitive daily life of a barbarian people lived before your eyes—the rude agriculture, the simple amusements, the rural feasts. You see the herders and the guardians of the crops go forth in the red desert dawn to return with a song in the steel-blue desert twilight, to the great, piled community dwelling where brown women sit in the doorways and children play in the dust. At certain seasons you see strange ceremonial dances that are half a religion and half a sport. You are continually struck by the contrast between habits that belong to savagery and custom that can only go with an old and deep-rooted civilization. Zuni is neither savage nor civilized, but a little of both.

The old Spaniards who explored New Mexico found in Zuni the worst of their disappointments. They had heard it called the Seven Citys of Cibola, a region said to be running over with gold. They found a wonder that their lust for wealth forbade them to appreciate. The modern visitor, who has learned that the money in traveling all goes one way, expects nothing but the picturesque and he is not disappointed

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

GRANDAD'S NURSE

BY LOUISE OLIVER

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was Sunday morning and out in the lawn swing under the pink and white blossom covered trees, Mr. Calvin Wickham and his grandson were reading the morning papers.

The wide lawn stretched over to a low iron fence, and there began another wide spreading lawn and then a house. On the porch of this house, a woman in white appeared, and with head thrown back to take in the fresh morning air, she started to promenade the gravel walk. Up and down she went until Mr. Wickham looked up with irritation.

"Look at that trained nurse over at Patterson's! Why can't she sit down and be quiet?"

The young man, also keenly alive to the presence next door, but with different emotions, looked up casually. "Who? Oh, Miss Taylor! Why! I suppose she's out for exercise. She's kept shut up pretty close, I suppose. Nice looking girl!"

"Nice looking! Perfect doll baby! I've no time for your so-called professional nurses, always dolled up in white caps and white dresses and aprons and things. It's only a pose. How could any one do any real work in a get-up like that?"

"They do it just the same," declared Frank stoutly.

"They pick out the part they want to do all right, take temperatures, dab 'em with alcohol out of a bottle and keep a chart, while the family hustles to do the other things. Whenever I see the old-fashioned kind, with her sleeves rolled up, down in the kitchen cooking soups and things to make 'em well I say to myself, 'Now, there's a nurse!' "

Frank laughed. "But you don't understand, grandad. If you want a parlor maid you hire one. Why, when people engage nurses, do they expect them not only to take care of the sick, but to cover the whole category of household help besides? The Pattersons are devoted to Laura Taylor."

"So you know her name, do you? Seems to me you're getting pretty well acquainted." And just then the nurse came to the point of the path nearest the fence and nodded brightly to her acquaintance in the swing.

"I met her the other night when the family had her out for a ride in the car," explained Frank. "They had a blow-out, so I stopped and helped. I heard one of the girls call her Laura. I think she's a relative."

The older man looked after the retreating figure critically. "She looks too much dressed up to be able to do $30 worth of work a week; that's all I've got to say. Besides, she's too darned pretty for a nurse. I'll bet her looking-glass works overtime."

Not deeming this remark worthy of reply, Frank was silent. Later, the two men went indoors to get ready for church.

Coming home, Frank found himself walking with Muriel Patterson. "Laura is leaving tonight," she said in her gay little chatterbox manner. "Mamma is just about as well as ever. I thought maybe you could come over to tea. We'd love to have you, and I'll dig up one or two others."

Frank accepted the invitation with alacrity, although there was regret in his tone as he remarked: "Miss Taylor going? That's too bad! You will miss her I know!

"Miss her! I guess we will, and really she saved mamma's life. She's a wonder and the dearest thing in the world."

That night, under the soft light of the candles, Frank thought that Laura Taylor, unofficially clad in a dress of sheer pale pink, looked like an angel on the wrong side of heaven. He couldn't take his eyes off her, and after tea, when the others repaired to the library to hear something new of Homer's on the Victrola, he whispered a request which she hesitatingly granted, a walk with him in the garden. She threw something fleecy around her shoulders, and under a soft young moon they wandered, talking of any little nothing that came into their heads.

A light was burning in the Wickham house. "Grandad hasn't gone to bed yet!" remarked Frank. "That's unusual. Sunday night he usually retires with the chickens!" He could not help wondering what the old man would say if he knew that his grandson was wandering about in the moonlight with the "doll baby" next door. And as if to echo his thought Laura said: "Your grandfather doesn't like me and I'm sorry. I can tell by the way he looks at me that he's appraising my stock in trade and wondering if I'm worth very much. So many older people are prejudiced against trained nurses!"

Frank answered as well as he could, and turned the conversation into other channels.

"I must watch the time," finally announced his companion. "My train goes at eleven and I have to change my dress. By the way, do you know anything about the trains on the E. D. and L. road. I have to change cars at Roxton and the Pattersons have lost their schedule."

"I have one at the house," returned Frank. "It will just take me an instant to get it. Suppose you walk over with me!"

"All right. I won't go in, though. I can wait on the veranda."

And so they turned their steps in that direction. Frank went into the library and in an instant returned in a panic. "Grandfather!" he cried. "I think he's dead! Come quick!"

And so they flew to the old man, who sat still and white in his chair by the table. "Laura had his wrist in a second. "No, not dead!" She spoke hurriedly. "Run over, please, and get my bag. It's in the lower hall by the clock."

In three minutes Frank was back, with the entire family at his heels.

"We'd better carry him upstairs," suggested Mr. Patterson.

"No, don't touch him," said the nurse in a quiet, firm voice Frank scarcely knew. "I want a glass of water," she added. Quietly and quickly she opened the bag, got a little black box and dissolved some tablets. Then she rolled back the old man's sleeve and went to work. "His heart!" she explained. "This is strychnia!"

Her hand went again to his pulse and stayed there. "Now please let us get him to the courch—very easy, now."

And so old Mr. Wickham got well. Laura didn't take the eleven o'clock train, but stayed to nurse him, and during her two weeks' stay the old man would scarcely let her out of his sight.

One day he called Frank in. "Son," he said, "if you want to do me a favor in my old age try to persuade Laura Taylor to marry you. She's the finest, smartest woman in the world."

"Good advice, grandad, but a little late," laughed Frank. "She's already promised me that very thing!"

Her Own Fault

It being leap year she decided to propose.

"Will you have me for your wife?" said she, sweetly.

Since you have suggested it, I will," he replied. "But just remember, Mame, if I don't turn out to be all you expect, you have only yourself to blame."

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND
by DAISY DEAN

Kittens Reichart

If you have seen "The Fool's Revenge," "A Soldier's Oath" or any one of the numerous pictures of this order you may remember that you could not help admiring Kittens Reichart. She is six and a half years old, "goin' on seven," as she will tell you. She comes as near to being an actual moving picture star as any child of her age or experience.

But Kittens has an added distinction of which it must be confessed she is not overproud. She went through an entire year of her life without a real name. Mother and Father Reichart just couldn't think of a name to give their baby and delayed the christening while they debated the subject. Meanwhile both called her Kittens because she played about just as kittens do. Finally her parents decided to keep the nickname they had bestowed on her as her given name, so to church they went and Kittens became little Miss Reichart's honest to goodness name for all time.

Fashion Fete For Movie Expo

"Fashion Day" at the First National Picture exposition at Madison Square Garden, May 6-14, will be observed by the best-known modistes, milliners and bootmakers in New York. French mannikins and the prettiest of American models will show the very latest of the world's fashions at the forthcoming exposition.

Not only will the professional models exhibit the gowns, but the stars of the screen will also appear in the newest styles and are among the best patrons of the Fifth avenue shops. In one of the recent film releases $25,000 worth of gowns were worn by the leading artist.

Wallace Reid, who is remembered as Don Jose in the Lasky production of "Carmen", in which Miss Geraldine Farrar made her debut in motion pictures, will play the principal masculine role in Miss Farrar's next photoplay, "Maria Rose," which will be shown in many cities before its regular release date on the Paramount program, May 15.

Twelve months ago the average motion picture actor was throwing a fit if he was requested to take a character part, it being the desire of his life or her life to play Venus and Apollo on the screen. Now, however, there's quite a different view being taken, for these people realize that it takes a person of ability to mold over successfully what the Lord gave him.

"Rags," starring Mary Pickford, and "Carmen," starring Geraldine Farrar, are enjoying long runs in South Africa.

The defenseless screen soon is to show an automobile with a maroon body, white wire wheels and a tan top, purchased by Jack Pickford.

ROAD BOOSTERS TO MEET AT M'GREGOR ON MAY SECOND

Representatives of Davenport, McGregor and Cresco Division of "Burlington Way" to Gather

M'GREGOR, Iowa, April 29.—(Special.) — The McGregor Auto Trails association is making elaborate plans for the meeting to be held here May 2 to organize the Davenport, McGregor and Cresco division of the Burlington Way. The Commercial clubs and prominent men over the whole territory from Davenport to Cresco have been invited to be present as the guests of the McGregor Commercial club. A special effort is also being made to get the farmers who live on the proposed route in Clayton and Allamakee to drive in for the meeting.

Burlington Way clubs have already been organized in Urbana, Center Point and Walker and will be organized before the first of May in Rowley, Independence, Hazelton, Oelwein, Maynard, Randalia, Hawkeye, Potivin, Cresco, Lime Springs and Chester. Dr. Marck Newland, the mayor of Center Point who is the supervisor of the Iowa and Minnesota division of the Burlington Way will be assisted by A. E. Nissen, general overseer. During the first week in May Messrs. Newland and Nissen and an engineer and a couple of newspaper men will make a three days' trip from Cedar Rapids to St. Paul for the purpose of logging the trail and also making arrangements for the thorough signboarding of it.

It is hoped that by June 1 the whole route of the Burlington Way from Davenport to St. Paul will be blazed and sign-boarded, as it already is from St. Louis to Davenport. The route will be selected with a view to the shortest and most populous way as well as the most scenic.

Suffragette Talks

Many McGregor people were stirred by the eloquent address of Mrs. Agnes Ludwig Riddle, Colorado's woman legislator, who was the principal speaker at the suffrage rally at the opera house Monday evening. When Mrs. Riddle left Colorado to come to Iowa to speak for equal suffrage, the governor, state officers, legislators and many other prominent men and women gathered at the depot to bid her good-bye. They sent this message to Iowa, "Tell the people of Iowa that we say equal suffrage is a splendid success in Colorado and we hope it will win in Iowa June 5."

Mrs. Riddle was accompanied to McGregor by Mrs. Elsie V. Benedict, national organizer for equal suffrage in the Fourth Iowa district. Mrs. Benedict gave an introductory talk.

Following a petition signed by every member of the Woman's Tourist club and many other citizens war has been declared on the dog nuisance. The ordinance providing that all dogs without a city dog license will be disposed of is being rigidly enforced. A large number of licenses have been paid within the last few days and a number of dogs have been taken up and shot.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

claims and the buying or leasing of farms; naturalization laws, marriage laws and all other laws likely to affect the immigrant, and also the addresses of the consuls representing each nation in America. Printed for free distribution in Connecticut, this guide is now available in all of the larger cities.

The American College for Immigrants at Springfield, Mass., is also under the patronage of the D. A. R. chapters of that state. Seventeen different nationalities attend this college, which gives academic and literary courses and a special course in American citizenship.

Helps Mountain Schools

In helping the mountain schools of the southern states, the organization spends annually $50,000. Last year the Arkansas chapters of the organization gave nine scholarships in the Helen Dunlay school of Winslow, Ark., and a little over $20 for clothing. In this school the cost of nine months of board and instruction is only $50, so that many girls are able to work their way through. The members of the Missouri chapters pay 10 cents per capita toward the maintenance of scholarships in the mountain school of the Ozarks in southern Missouri; in North Carolina the daughters built and maintain a mountain school, and the South Carolina members have an industrial school for mountain pupils. The New York chapters last year contributed over $20,000 for educational and philanthropic work.

There are still more than a million people in the mountain districts of the southern states who can not read or write, many of whom are Americans of the oldest and purest English stock. Of the 13,000,000 foreign-born residents in the United States over two and a half million adults cannot speak English and are not receiving any instruction. Half of this number cannot read or write in any language at all. The D. A. R. is now making plans to eradicate as much of this illiteracy as possible.

Historic Monuments

A movement in which all the chapters of the organization are interested is the marking of old military roads and historic trails. The Daniel Boone trail, the Pioneer trail or "Mormon trail," the Sante Fe trail and the King's Highway have all been marked with bronze tablets and monuments by the Daughters of the various states through which they pass. Moreover, efforts have been made to perpetuate the history of every significant occurrence durink the Revolutionary war by monuments of one kind and another.

The chapters of each state are supposed to investigate the history of their individual communities and honor the memory of any man or woman playing a conspicuous part in the progress of the nation. Thus Maryland chapters erected a bronze tablet to Francis Scott Key at Fort McHenry; the Illinois chapters persuaded the state legislature to buy Fort Massac where they erected a monument to George Rogers Clark, and the District of Columbia daughters were instrumental in bringing the remains of John Paul Jones to America, and having the remains of Major L'Enfant interred in the National cemetery at Arlington.

Hall at Washington

Continental hall, the national home of the D. A. R. here, was built by the organization and is the only building to the public welfare not subsidized by government appropriations. It is a white marble building with a pillared portico, facing a wide expanse of park and situated between the Pan American building and the National Corcoran Art gallery. Among other things, it contains a valuable reference library of American history, a museum of historical relics and a large assembly hall used for patriotic and public gatherings. The hall is already famous as the scene of the first female indignation meeting of American history, for here met the woman suffragists from all over the country on the third of March, 1912, and made their appeal to congress to avenge the disaster to their parade.

This building is also the home of the D. A. R. Magazine published monthly by the organization, containing many excellent articles concerning America history and genealogical records. The society has traced the history of American music and even American cooking, discovering many ancient recipes that were fashionable among the original American aristocrats. One, translated from the Dutch by Mrs. French Chadwick, wife of Rear Admiral Chadwick, is for "Taart Van Oysters," and says: "Take oysters from the shell with the liquor; put these on the under crust of the pie, with butter, pepper, nutmeg, and cracker crumbs over them. Spread over this capers and thin slices of lemon. Squeeze the juice of one orange over the whole before putting on the upper crust."

More Than Ancestor Worship

While the D. A. R. has encountered a certain amount of popular ridicule, owing to its great respect for conspicuous ancestry, from this it may be seen that the organization is doing actual work for the progress of the people as well as in keeping the records of the nation.

From a small society of a few members, it has grown until its insignia is recognized even in Europe. The D. A. R. magazine states that at the beginning of the European war members wearing D. A. R. pins in the belligerent countries were shown every courtesy and consideration as compared to those who did not, while in St. Petersburg the emblem was recognized on the coat of an unknown dead woman, whose body was therefore taken into custody by a Russian church until it could be sent back to America. Should United States become involved in war, the services of such a large organization of patriotic women as the D. A. R. would be of inestimable value.

FEDERAL "RUGGED TREAD" TIRES

are not a mere fanciful design. Neither are these skid-proof treads the result of chance or guesswork. "Rugged Treads" have been worked out, developed and refined according to scientific and mathematical principles.

The tough "Rugged" studs are so big and broad they give longest wear without tearing loose or breaking down.

Their base is large and therefore cannot press into the fabric and break it.

Their round surfaces strike and leave the road or pavement gradually and smoothly. The three rows give perfect traction with the least amount of friction.

The outer rows are tapered so that the entire tread wears down evenly, and prevents fabric-breaking.

The three parallel rows of these round studs present at all times the same number of resisting points against skidding.

No matter in what direction the wheels tend to slip, the required number of "Rugged" studs are on the job and stop it.

"Rugged Treads" are made of the very best quality of rubber. They are resilient and therefore do not cut or break, yet tough so as to give extra service in maximum wear.

The pure whiteness of Federal "Rugged Treads" is proof of their high quality and freedom from substitutes or inferior rubber. Only the purest and best rubber can be made so white. This tread is applied by new and improved methods. Under high and absolutely even pressure it is vulcanized to the carcass and becomes an integral part of the tire. Federal "Rugged Treads" cannot warp or loosen. For sale by

TEUTONS CAPTURE MANY RUSSIANS IN FIGHTING IN EAST

BERLIN, April 29.—More than 5,600 Russian troops, including officers of high rank, were captured when the Germans carried Slav positions south of the Naroc, between Stanarocze and Stachowce, the war office announced today.

In reporting the victory in the northern district of the Russian front, the official statement added that one cannon, twenty-eight machine guns and ten mine throwers were captured. Included among the prisoners taken were fifty-six officers, among whom were four staff officers.

The German thrust south of Lake Naroc was made in order to better observation posts taken by the Germans last month.

On the western front, new French counter attacks were repulsed at Height Morthomme and eastward. Mine combats were reported between the La Basse canal and Arras.

MANY FRIENDS AT LAST RITES FOR FRANK PRZYWOJSKI

Hundreds of lodge brothers, fellow-employes and friends gathered at Holy Cross church on Thirteenth and Ferry streets this morning for the funeral of Frank Przywojski, assistant superintendent of the street car system, who died at his home here on Wednesday. Members of the Foresters, the Knights of Columbus and the Third Ward Aid society marched in the cortege which escorted the body of Mr. Przywojski to its last rest in the Catholic cemetery.

Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock, Rev. Lucien J. Kufel officiating. The casket was banked with floral offerings sent by the host of friends who mourn the popular young street car man.

Pallbearers at the funeral were B. H. Volz, Joseph J. Frisch, William McMillan, Henry Sturz, J. P. Lyons and P. J. Riegger.

the north hope for relief in a few days. It is pointed out that drops in the Chippewa and St. Croix rivers are indicated by the lessened stage of the water at upriver points, and that the crest of the flood has been reached in La Crosse. It is even predicted by rivermen the stream will begin to recede today.

The brisk south wind today brought out the worth of the hay and brush buffers placed along the south side of the road across Black river to French Island. High waves, which otherwise would have cut deeply into the banks, were rendered impotent. The trees placed on Thursday and Friday along the causeway bank also served as protection against wave action.

GOVERNMENT LAYS SIEGE TO PLACES HELD BY REBELS

by the mobs. Today pedestrians received whispered offers from the windows of dwelling houses to buy gold watches and diamond rings for almost nothing.

An arm would be thrust from a window with a gold watch and a man or woman whose face was concealed from view would whisper the price.

REBEL FORCE TAKE

LONDON, April 29.—A rebel force variously estimated at from 2,000 to 10,000 has been cornered and surrounded in the heart of Dublin by British troops.

The government forces have laid siege to the general postoffice building in which the rebels have established headquarters. Several nearby buildings have been captured from the Sinn Feiners. Light artillery has been trained upon the postoffice but the British commanders hope to capture the rebel headquarters without doing further damage to the building itself.

A press dispatch from near Dublin today reported that some of the rebel bands have made overtures for surrender.

Severe fighting occurred in the Irish capital late yesterday afternoon when British troops attacked and captured the strongly entrenched positions of the rebels in Stephens Green.

Government troops rushed barricades in a massed attack and after fifteen minutes of furious hand to hand fighting broke through the gate. Inside the Green the rebels had their own shallow trenches, protested by sandbags. From behind these they poured fusillades at the British troops pouring through the gate.

Charge Rebel Works

Despite this hot fire, the government forces charged the rebel works without waiting for reinforcements. One detachment of Sinn Feiners was cut off and surrounded. The prisoners number more than 300. An unofficial dispatch today said that the entire green is in possession of government forces.

The authorities have been informed that the Countess Markievicz, sister of an Irish baron and wife of a Polish nobleman, appeared in a green uniform and marched with the Sinn Feiners on the day the revolt began.

According to the best information obtainable here today, the rebels still hold the general postoffice, a large biscuit factory near Dublin castle and the Four courts, an area situated between the castle and the Royal Dublin barracks.

At Killarney, Enniscorthy, Gorey, Clonmel and in certain sections of County Galway disturbances have occurred, but other portions of Ireland remain calm, it is officially stated.

Troops Leave

Sinn Fein agents who attempted to start outbreaks in Cork and other Irish cities were promptly arrested. A force of troops left England yesterday morning for Ireland, and it is believed General Sir John Maxwell will be able to control the situation without further reinforcements.

The government continued to receive strong statements of support today from Irish leaders throughout the empire. John Redmond, Irish nationalist leader, gave to a number of correspondents a lengthy statement, expressing feelings of horror at the folly of the Sinn Feiners. The situation is certain to receive most serious attention in parliament next week when several members will demand the resignation of Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell and Lord Wimborne.

The best accounts of the outbreak of the rebellion were brought here by the first boat load of passengers arriving from Ireland, via Holyhead. These stories agreed that the trouble started at the stroke of noon Monday when a force of nearly 1,000 rebels, wearing soft hats and with a marvelous collection of rifles, some modern and some old fashioned, burst into the general postofice and ordered the employes to leave.

A number of armed women accompanied the first body of Sinn Feiners.

The rebel flag—green, white and yellow, with a large harp—was thrust from one of the upper windows of the postoffice and a policeman who remonstrated was thrown bodily from the second floor.

Occupy Stephens Green

Another rebel force, bursting forth mysteriously from public houses and shops along Sackville street, moved toward Stephen's Green, gathering recruits as they marched. Several policemen were shot down near the park gates. A nurse girl wheeling a perambulator was wounded by one of the flying bullets and a baby killed.

The Westland Row station was captured by another small detachment, while other small bodies of picked men took possession of all buildings occupying strategic points, including the Guiness brewery and the Royal College of Surgeons. An attack was begun late Monday afernoon on Dublin castle, but a small body of government troops, armed with machine guns, brought the marchers to a halt.

Calm Monday Night

Throughout Monday night Dublin was calm, except that numerous fires broke out. The Sinn Feiners contended themselves with throwing up barricades and looting stores and hotels for food supplies.

One old lady, indignant at being stopped on the way to her favorite shop, slapped the face of a youthful Sinn Fein sentry, who sheepishly allowed her ta pass.

The government troops began a systematic attack on the rebel positions early Tuesday. The Irish guards took several barricades with little resistance, while machine guns spattered bullets through the windows of buildings held by the rebels.

The Guiness brewery and several public houses were quickly recaptured. Artillery was trained on Liberty hall, the headquarters of the Sinn Feiners, before the outbreak and the building crumbled to ruins. It is reported that several score of rebels were kiled at this point.

The Sinn Feiners, apparently disheartened at the reverses, abandoned positions in the outskirts of Dublin Wednesday and concentrated in the Sackville street section. Upon the arrival of reinforcements from Belfast and England the government troops threw a ring around the rebel force.

Cabinet Meet Extraordinary

LONDON, April 29.—The cabinet met unexpectedly this morning, causing the circulation of most sensational rumors in view of the fact that ministerial meetings are never held on Saturday. The meeting was at once connected with King George's conference with Premier Asquith and Lord Kitchener yesterday afternoon and the reports of a new cabinet crisis.

In some quarters it was rumored that the special cabinet meeting had to do with the Irish crisis and the almost unanimous demand by the newspapers that Secretary for Ireland Birrell resign. Another report was that it had to do with the conscription fight in parliament.

[redacted]OF REPLY

Kaiser Believed to Have Completed Answer and to Be Discussing Situation with Gerard

COPENHAGEN, Rpril 29.—Germany's reply to the American submarine note has been completed, and will be delivered to Washington at the beginning of next week, the Tageblatt declares.

Dispatches quoting the Tageblatte declare that all German newspapers now take an optimistic view of the situation but declare that no one outside of headquarters definitely knows the terms of Germany's reply.

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN

BERLIN, April 29.—Publication of President Wilson's memorandum, stating in precise terms the American attitude with regard to armed merchantmen, caused a new flurry here today.

No official comment was obtainable. The average Berliner, whose first wave of anger over the American note had subsided, thought he saw substantiation of the old charge that the United States is doing everything to help England.

The statement in the memorandum that armed merchantman is a peaceable trading ship until conclusive evidence to the contrary is offered, was pointed to by several German critics today.

It is too early to say whether publication of the memorandum will cause any hitch in the German-American negotiations which are now in a satisfactory state. This information probably will not be obtainable until after the return of Ambassador Gerard from the headquarters conference with the kaiser, which was to begin today.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER

WASHINGTON, April 29.—There was a marked relaxation of tension on the U-boat situation today. It was attributed largely to the knowledge emanating from German diplomatic sources both in Washington and Berlin that the German foreign office has completed its reply to President Wilson's note on the submarine issue and that the kaiser is discussing the whole subject of friendly relations between the two nations with Ambassador Gerard.

The German reply, which is expected to be accompanied by a personal expression from German officials of a strong desire that there be no break in existing friendly intercourse between the United States and Germany, is expected to be in President Wilson's hands by the middle of next week, if not sooner. The German embassy's earlier forecast had put the date of the reply's receipt as late as the end of the week.

In the belief that German officials have met the embarrassing problem facing them.

[redacted]SCONSIN WINS [redacted]ISTANCE MEDLEY [redacted] RACE AT CARNIVAL

[redacted]HILALELPHIA, Pa., April 29.—[redacted] Meredith won the sprint medley [redacted]y race of the Penn carnival for [redacted]e University of Pennsylvania on Franklin field yesterday after Binga Dismond, the crack Negro sprinter from the University of Chicago, had given his team a lead of six yards to start the last relay. Penn's quartet set a new world record of 3:28 3-5 for the event. The former mark was 3:33 4-5, set by Penn last year.

Meredith took up the running against Stout of Chicago for the final dash and soon made up the distance his teammates had lost. Stout, Meredith and Harvey of Wisconsin were all bunched until rounding the stretch, when the Penn flyer escaped a pocket and went to the front, winning by three yards. Stout landed second and Harvey third. Meredith's time for his half mile was 1:54 4-5.

Six Teams in Race

In the medley the first two men ran 220 yards each, the third 440, and the fourth 880 yards. Kaufman for Penn led the sprinters in the first relay with Moore, Princeton, and Smith, Wisconsin, close up. Lennon, Pennsylvania, Barrett, Princeton, and Carter, Wisconsin, finished the second relay in the order named.

Berry Takes Pentathlon

Howard Berry, all-round athlete of Penn, won the pentathlon.

Wisconsin captured the distance medley race for the championship in hollow style, its only competitor being Pennsylvania. Another record went when H. White of Syracuse heaved the fifty-six pound weight 31 feet 5 inches, which betters the collegiate record by four feet one-half inch.

SUICIDE THOUGHT POSSIBLE REASON OF DISAPPEARANCE

That suicide might be the explanation of the mysterious disappearance of Joseph Tadnez, Mexican laborer who has disappeared from his home on the north side, was the belief of the police today, following the statement by Dr. R. H. Gray that the lost man was subject to aberration.

Tadnez had been released from the hospital Monday, where he had undergone treatment for a tubercular affection of a toe. Dr. Gray said today that he had acted strangely while under his care.

Police nad been unable to find any trace of the missing man at noon.

GREAT HOUSE IS CHARMED BY H. S. OPERA LAST NIGHT

(BY MRS. JAMES R. KERR)

An appreciative audience that completely filled the La Crosse Theater, listened last evening to the presentation of "The Chimes of Normandy" by the Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs of the La Crosse High school. Considering the youth of the performers it was a splendid achievement, and well merited rounds of applause punctuated the efforts of those taking part. Under the inspiration of Miss Ida McLean's baton, the numbers were sung with a vim and vigor that at times reached an almost professional abandon.

Emily Goetzman was a charming Germaine, appealing to the eye and histrionically adequate. She is the possessor of an excellent voice and sings with good taste.

Clara Weimar made the role of Serpolette dramatically impressive. Her singing of "Look at that look at this" was especially pleasing.

Both Miss Weimar and Miss Goetzman interpreted their parts splendidly.

Hugh Marshall acquitted himself well in the role of Henri, Marquis of Corneville, his voice lending itself well to the sentimental music and his stage presence giving the impression of the romantic knight. The final duet with germaine was beautifully done.

Marshall Cohen did a good bit of work as the bluff Bailli, imparting to the role a very good understanding of the character.

Gaspard, the miser, was intelligently interpreted by Sylvester Muldowney. His sense of rythym was marked, and accuracy and ease distinguished his performance which was one of the best of the evening.

The role of Jean was taken by Frank Root, who sang several solos pleasingly.

Minor roles well done were those of the four village maidens, Helen Herman, Maude Robbins, Dora Hirshheimer and Elizabeth Wolfe, and the registrar, assessor and notary in the hands respectively of Don Carleton, Elmer Thiel and Gerald Westby.

One of the prettiest bits of the evening was the lovely dancing at the beginning of the third act by June Rowlison, Margaret Pryor and Caroline Schweizer. One wished they could have been more in evidence as the fete progressed.

The chorus numbering 100 showed careful training both in singing and acting, their attacks being especially good and their entrances and exits well tuned and harmonious. Only in one or two instances did they wander from the baton with a little too much accelerando. An entire absence of nervousness, that bane of most amateur performances, marked the work of both chorus and principals. The costumes were brilliant and the stage settings very appropriate. The orchestra interpreted the tuneful and melodious score with fervor and effectively aided the performance. A persistently inopportune presentation of boquets somewhat marred several good climaxes.

To present the "Chimes of Normandy" one of the best light operas ever written and one requiring vocal and dramatic skill combined with intelligence and taste is no light task and to Miss McLean and Miss Dunn great credit is due for an altogether delightful performance.

MUSICAL HAPPENINGS

NOWADAYS the art of the greatest singers and musicians is just as familiar as their names to the music loving public. Thousands of people really know and appreciate the superb renditions of the world's famous artists through hearing them on Victor Records. Each month a new list of records places at the command of these music-lovers additional entertainment for them to enjoy in their own homes, and the new list of Victor records for May is one that will bring delight to countless thousands the country over.

The great Caruso sings the beautiful "O sole mio" which has become known all over the world. It is full of grace and melody of the south, and its lilt and brightness are redolent of the joy of life as it is lived in sunny Naples. And it can readily be imagined that this appealing gem of Neapolitan folk-song is rendered in a most delightful manner by the greatest of tenors. The exquisite "Moonlight" of Schumann's is one of the most beautiful and fascinating of the master's compositions. If the quiet color of a perfect night can be described in poetry and music, then Schumann has portrayed it here. Julia Culp is one of those rare singers who are capable of giving such a song its proper expression and her record of this selection is wholly admirable.

Alma Gluck is heard in a charming old ballad, "Listen to the Mocking Bird," which is given in most attractive form with some real mocking-bird calls by that famous "Nature singer," Charles Kellogg. Mme. Gluck also sings with spirit, fluency and skill the charming "Musetta Waltz" from Bohome. Sophie Braslau renders the delightful old sentimental number, "Last Night," with much charm. Marcel Journet, the famous French basso, presents the Russian national hymn, "God Save the Czar," and in honor of the cordial relations now existing between Russia and France, he sings the first verse in Russian and the second in French.

Of the new group of English songs which Schumann-Heink has been using this season, perhaps the most impressive is La Forge's setting of a poem, "Before the Crucifix." It is superbly rendered by the great contralto. Titta Ruffo contributes an aria, "What Ho, Mariners!" from the opera of L'Africana. Although he has never sung in this opera in America, his role of Nelusko is famous in Europe and South America, and he sings this short declamation in magnificent style. Herbert Witherspoon has chosen for his record that charming old Molloy ballad, "Rose-Marie," and Clarence Whitehill sings that dear old song, "Some Day," with much expression and just the right degree of pathos.

John McCormack sings one of the great successes of his concert tour, "The Old Refrain," a delightful little number which Fritz Kreisler has arranged from an old Viennese folk-song. McCormack also sings a charming number, "Flirtation," with a fine violin obbligato by Kreisler. The noted Austrian violinist is also heard in a solo number, an exquisite interpretation of a charming little waltz by Leopold Godowsky, which shows that this composer is a master hand at keen musical characterization and delicate harmonic suggestion.

Mischa Elman gives a fine exhibition of skill in his rendition of Weber's spirited "Country Dance," playing it with captivating grace and delicacy. The perfection of the mandolin is well shown in two renditions by the Athenian Mandolin Quartet, composed of four players of Greek descent who have developed the art of ensemble players to a high degree. Three mandolins and a guitar are used, and their records of the "Spanish Rhapsody" and "Estudiantina Waltz" are extremely interesting. The Neapolitan Trio presents the popular "I Hear You Calling Me," and the Venetian Trio contributes another favorite concert ballad in instrumental form, the "Little Grey Home in the West." Joseph Moskowitz gives two cembalom solos of popular music, and Pietro Dier plays two fine overtures on his "accordion grand."

Sousa's band is heard in two characteristic Sousa numbers, "The Lamb's March," dedicated to the Lamb's club of which the "March King" is an enthusiastic member, and a charming number, "The Gliding Girl," which has made a hit at the Hippodrome concerts. Conway's band gives two splendid melodies of the past, fifteen airs being included, and the numbers are played with the requisite dash and spirit, or pathos, according to the selection. The Victor Concert orchestra offers a splendid presentation of one of Haydn's master works, the final two movements of the great "Military Symphony". Those two beautiful classics, "Narcissus" and Moszkowski's "Serenade," seem especially attractive when embellished with Charles Kellog's bird songs. This noted "Nature Singer" gives splendid renditions of both numbers, and the softly played music of the Victor orchestra form a delicate accompaniment to Mr. Kellogg's twittering and warbling. Three different organizations furnish this month's dance music—McKee's orchestra plays two waltzes, Vess Ossman's Banjo orchestra plays a fox trot and a one-step, and the Victor Military band a half-doxen medley fox-trots and one-steps.

Harry Lauder sings a patriotic song of his own composition, "The British Bulldog's Watching at the Door," and also presents a new song, "Nanny," which gives the Scotch comedian an opportunity to display his talent in a new character, that of a jilted and very tearful lover who tries to explain why the bonds were broken. Just as you are ready to wipe your eyes, however, Harry puts in a humorous touch and you laugh instead. Joseph Cawthorn's song, "I Can Dance With Everybody But My Wife," which he sings in the melodious comedy Sybil, is decidedly the best topical song written in the twentieth century. Cawthorn gives four of the best verses and each seems funnier than the preceding one. He also sings another very amusing number, "It's a Small World," which contains much philosophy, and you will indeed think this is a "small world" when he has given his views on the subject. Charles Ross Taggart has heard so much about "this here feller Billy Sunday" that he goes down to the city to hear the evangelist and he tells about it in a very quaint manner. On the reverse side Taggart gives an amusing account of what happened when a Victrola was used to play the wedding march at a wedding.

Kitty Cheatham, who has the reputation of being "the greatest entertainer of children in the world" introduces herself to Victor audiences by her unique presentation of the old Nursery Rhyme. And she also sings four genuine Negro songs with which she was sung to sleep when a child, and she gives them in their primitive and undeveloped state exactly as they were sung by the faithful old Negroes. That popular singing evangelist, Homer Rodeheaver, contributes unusually fine renditions of his famous prohibition song, "Molly and the Baby, Don't You Know," and the well-known gospel hymn, "My Wonderful Dream." Mrs. William Asher, another member of the musical staff of the Billy Sunday party, sings two favorite hymns, "Somebody Cares" and "Nobody Like Jesus," in a sweet clear voice with excellent enunciation.

Florence Hinkle presents effective renditions of the old Scotch air, "Comin' Thro' the Rye," and Nevin's lovely pastoral gem, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying." The Victor Mixed chorus is heard in two highly interesting old songs which are well worth while and which make many of the present-day numbers seem poor indeed. The Victor Male Quartet sings the old-time ballad, "The Little Brown Church in the Vale," and the Imperial quartet contributes a melodious darkey number, "When They Ring the Golden Bells for You and Me," which is given with some unique chime effects. The month's list of popular songs is made up of sixteen of the best numbers, presented in an admiral manner by well-known singers of the Victor staff. Six numbers which have heretofore been made in single-faced form are now combined on three double-faced records, and among them are the great "Lucia Sextet" by the Victor Opera Sextet, and the "Rigoletto quartet," by the Victor Opera quartet. Both can now be had on one double-faced record and this will doubtless prove an extremely popular combination.

A very notable addition to the Ancient Music History is made in two fine educational records rendered by Olive Kline and Reinald Werrenrath. There are also two other educational numbers by Werrenrath and Lambert Murphy, and the Victor String quartet is heard in Beethoven's "Quartet in C Minor" and the "Quartet in F. Major," both numbers being played with fine balance and an intelligent interpretation.

It is a real delight to hear all this splendid music, and there are surely some selections mentioned which you would like to hear. You can hear them if you will stop in at any Victor dealers, and you will enjoy every minute of your stay.

SNAPSHOTS OF LARGE PARTY WHICH GOLFED AT COUNTRY CLUB LAST WEEK

The accompanying photographs are views of a large party who sent clubs and duds all the way from New Haven, Conn., to play golf on the Country club links last Saturday. The large party is shown in the lower left-hand corner, the picture having been taken just at the moment that Former President William H. Taft—he was the large party—expressed himself in what is said to have been the most profane grunt heard on the local links. Mr. Taft does not follow the general golfing vocabulary in use for occasions such as his unfortunate lie in the picture. He has a splendid and effective range of grunts which was the marvel of all beholders here.

In the upper right-hand corner appears a parley between the commanders of the opposing forces—"Big Bill" Taft and George W. Burton, golfer (and bank president) whose discussion of his own game aroused Judge Taft to a challenge last winter.

Above is a section of the gallery which followed the former president's foursome. Left to right are seen Mrs. R. C. Whelpley, Mrs. Harry Hirshheimer, Frank P. Hixon, Mr. Taft, Mrs. George W. Burton.

The picture below illustrates Mr. Taft's favorite exercise for keeping thin. It is movement No. 2 of the exercise, which is described as follows:

"Movement No. 1—Hit a small ball as far as possible.

"Movement No. 2—Pace the distance to where the ball stopped.

"Repeat."

HOWZE'S RIDE TO GO DOWN IN HISTORY AS FEATURE OF EXPEDITION

WITH GENERAL PERSHING'S FIELD HEADQUARTERS, April 29.—The ride of Major Howze and a squadron of the Eleventh cavalry through Villista ambushes and penetrating to the Durango line, 571 miles from the American border, will go down as one of the most notable features of the punitive expedition's stay in Mexico.

The column learned from natives along the line of Villa's retreat that he was shot in the head and leg. The natives believe Villa is alive and hiding in the mountains of Northern Durango. They found an overturned wagon in which Villa was said to have been carried until its canvas top was improvised into a litter for him.

Kill Mexican

In the hills outside of La Joya, the squadron ran on four Mexicans who refused to halt. The Americans fired, killing Captain Silva, a supposed Villista. The following day near Santa Cruz the American column was fired on from ambush, losing two pack mules. Later a native guide led the Americans into another ambush in which Trooper Kirby was killed and four men wounded. The squadron also lost six horses killed. Thirty other mounts died of exhaustion on the ensuing pursuit.

It developed that the ambush was prepared by the men of La Joya, Rosario, and Santa Cruz. The Americans buried Kirby near where he fell.

Entering Santa Cruz at 3 a. m., the next day, the snipers wounded a trooper. The Americans shot into the snipers, killing Lieutenant Beltran, a Villista who proved to be the son of the jefe primero or mayor of Santa Cruz.

Ride Burros

By this time some of Howze's men were riding burros obtained along the line of march. On April 14, on arriving at Casita, southwest of Parral and in sight of the Durango state line, the column was turned back by Aviator Rader bringing news of the attack on Major Tompkins force at Parral. Near Parral, on the return march to the aid of Tompkins, the column was advised by a Carranzista officer to turn aside to Santa Cruz. A Carranzista guide for the Americans lost his way on the night march, but dawn disclosed Santa Cruz and Tompkins' force only a mile away.

Since then today's San Antonio advices are the most definite advices of renewed danger from Mexican uprisings.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor yesterday wired a protest to Governor Willis of Ohio and Mayor Karb of Columbus against the arrest and threatened deportation of Allen Burt and George Keenan, labor organizers participating in the Columbus street car strike.

BETHLEHEM WAGES UP

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—The Bethlehem Steel company announced a general increase of wages on May first for 7,000 employes of its steel plants, recently acquired through the purchase of the Pennsylvania Steel company.

Common laborers will receive 20 cents an hour. In other departments the increase will be equitably proportioned.

Anyway, one-half the world suspects how you live.

TITLE THREATENED

RACINE, Wis., April 29.—Title to the land on which is located the village of Ives, and also the immense plant of the Universal Stone company is placed in jeopardy by a suit instigated by the heirs of the late John Vaughn, whose last will was admitted to probate in 1877. The property has changed hands several times since, but a son and daughter of the deceased now claim to have discovered a flaw in the proceedings of the probate court thirty-three years ago which gives them clear title to the entire estate. The property involved is valued now at approximately $2,000,000.

INSURERS ACCEPTED

MADISON, Wis., April 29.—A license to do business in Wisconsin yesterday was granted Sherman and Ellis, inter-insurers, Chicago, by the state insurance department.

Electrical railways of the United States represent a valuation of $730,000,000.

BASCOM PRAISES LA CROSSE PAVING

University Engineer Declares Local Streets Better Than in Any Other Similar State City

HE DECIDES AGAINST BUCK

Costs Too Much and Means Destruction of Old Base and Entire New Road

La Crosse has better streets than any other city of its size in the state of Wisconsin. That is the assertion of George R. Bascom, municipal and sanitary engineer of the university extension division, in a report on his inspection of La Crosse streets, read last night before a meeting of the special street improvement committee of the common council.

Following discussion of the recommendations contained in the report, the committee decided on recommendations to the council for street improvement including:

Committee's Recommendations

Paving West avenue from Main street to Jackson street with bituminous concrete, a mixture of asphalt and crushed rock.

Covering Sixth street between Main and Cass streets with a seal coat of asphalt.

Application of a coating of a light tar preparation on Cass street between Seventh and Thirteenth streets, as well as on the creosote block pavement in front of the Lutheran hospital on Mormon Coulee road.

Surfacing of State street between Sixth and Twelfth streets, and Eighth street between Main and State streets asphalt on waterbound macadam.

Brick paving on Main street between Eighth and Eleventh streets; on Third street between the north line of Mississippi street and the north line of Jackson street; on Gould street between Mill and Rose streets; and on St. James street between the west line of Rose street and the east line of Caledonia street.

Paving Ferry street between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets with bituminous asphalt, brick or asphalt macadam.

A special meeting of the council was called for Monday night to consider the report of the committee.

Excellent natural drainage and the fine quality of the hard granite wearing surface of the streets have done much to keep La Crosse streets in good condition, Engineer Bascom says in his report. He cited as cases Main street, between Eighth and Twelfth streets, and Division street, which have been in service for fourteen years with only negligible repairs.

Two Kinds of Streets

In his recommendations, Mr. Bascom divides the streets into two classes, the first class embracing streets with the granite surface practically gone; and the second class embracing such thoroughfares as Main and State streets, with the greater portion of the surface intact but containing numerous holes.

For the first class of streets, only one road is open for repair, the report recommends, that being entire resurfacing. Mr. Bascom says the base is intact and that it would be necessary only to build another top surface as originally. He opposes the use of brick, declaring the base not suitable. A concrete base would be necessary, he says, exceeding the limitations of the $10,000 improvement fund.

Concerning the second class of streets, Mr. Bascom names several different modes of repair. Primarily, he recommends the city maintain a permanent street repair gang, which could forestall repetition of existing street conditions.

He urged that "potholes" can be cheaply and efficiently repaired by using granite, estimating the cost not to exceed fifty dollars per block yearly. Asphalt preparations, he says, may be used as binders, but that it is not necessary.

Bradish Takes Issue

City Engineer Bradish took issue with Mr. Bascom on that point, asserting two years' use is required in ordinary waterbound macadam street construction, and, therefore, in repair work for the macadam, to form a lasting surface. He declared asphalt was needed immediately to "bind" repairs and to form a suitable surface. He recommended, also, the use of highly slackened concrete for the repair of holes.

MAY ROBSON NOW A SCREEN STAR

Refuting the adage that "a woman is as old as she looks," May Robson, for many years one of Broadway's favorite actresses, dances her way to greater fame in the Vitagraph's latest release, "A Night Out," written by herself and Charles T. Dazey and produced by George D. Baker.

Miss Robson plays the part of a grandmother in whom the fires of youth still burn and she refuses to submit to the dictates of old age. It is a character portrayal of unusual interest and Miss Robson infuses a freshness and gaiety into the part that more than justifies her claim to histrionic ability.

The play has an appeal that is distinctive and has already met with favorable comments from the critics. A capable cast of Vitagraph comedians assist Miss Robson in making "A Night Out" one of the most refreshing films of the season. It includes Ethel Corcoran, George Cooper, Arthur Cozine, Hughey Mack, Belle Bruce, Kate Price, Flora Finch, Charles Brown and others.

At the Strand Sunday.

THREE CITIES BID FOR BISHOP

COLUMBUS, O., April 29.—Efforts will be made by local delegates to secure a resident Methodist bishop for Columbus at the General Methodists conference at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., which opens Monday.

Bishop William F. Anderson, of this Methodist "area", has been stationed at Cincinnati about ten years. The Cleveland delegation is planning to have him transferred to their city.

The Columbus delegation plans stepping into the expected fracas with a "middle of the state" argument. Pittsburgh also is in the race.

360,000 RAILROAD MEN TO CONSIDER REPLY TO DEMANDS

CHICAGO, April 29.—Union chiefs of the four railway brotherhoods met here today to receive the reply of the railroads in answer to their demands for an eight hour day and time and one-half for overtime, submitted April 1.

Membership in the brotherhoods number 360,000. The union men also were expected to reply to the counter proposals of the railroad managers, which were given them when the eight hour demands were submitted.

EIGHT STRIKERS ARRESTED

CHICAGO, April 29.—Eight strikers were arrested and a policeman injured by a flying brick Friday in the first violence of the International Harvester employes' strike at Blue Island, Ill. Three thousand men are now out.

MORE TRADE BOOSTERS OFF

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Two parties of American business men and financiers are sailing today for Brazil and Argentina, respectively, on the return visit in connection with the Pan-American Financial congress. The special needs of commerce and finance in these countries will be studied, in conjunction with local committees.

LABOR PARTY ORGANIZED

BOSTON, April 29.—Representatives of the labor unions are to meet here today to take steps toward forming a union labor political party. The delegates come from all sections of the state, and it is claimed that 150,000 men and women are represented.

ANOTHER BACONIST

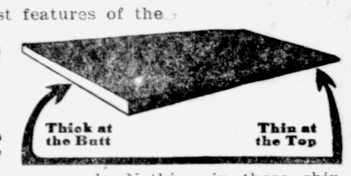

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Chicago judge who ruled that Bacon wrote what Shakespeare is supposed to have written, has found an ally here. A man, who said he was Michael Brenner, president of the Washington Heights Bacon club, claimed that "Bacon's business" had been stolen by the Bard of Avon and tried to break up a Shakespeare tercentenary celebration at Washington Irving high school. He was locked in a room until the exercises were over.

ARMS TABOOED

COLUMBUS, N. M., April 29.—The accidental shooting of two army truck drivers in Columbus resulted in an order that civilian employes at the base camp be disarmed. Roy Snell, a young chauffeur of San Antonio, Tex., accidentally discharged a pistol he was exhibiting, the bullet striking D. L. Gage of Deming after passing through Snell. Since the Columbus raid even children have gone armed and many accidents have resulted.

WEEK'S OFFERING IN MOVIELAND AS SEEN IN LA CROSSE

By N. D. Tevis

Ben Huntley, Winona Cameraman, Gets on Job in Flooded District Upstream and Films "Big Cut" in Burlington Dyke—Bijou to Exhibit Films Here Monday.

THE BIJOU has secured exclusive rights to show the Huntley movies n La Crosse. The films will be the central attraction at the Third street house Monday, matinee and evening.

Bent Huntley, Winona, a right handy chap with the motion picture camera most anywhere one could put him, the man who has filmed several events in La Crosse, got on the "job" when the floodwaters of the Mississippi carried out two hundred and twenty-five feet of embankment of the Burlington right-of-way near East Winona last Sunday. Huntley filmed the "big cut" while it was "fresh," and then stayed with the job for two days while the Burlington rushed reinforcements and placed thousands of sand-bags on both sides of the fill.

The pictures are said to be well filmed and to show some clever scenes of the water rushing its way through the impromptu bridge and battering away at the rest of the embankment. Huntley also "caught" some good films on other sections of the endangered railroad. The films include scenes of damage caused by the hight water in the city of Winona.

We're for Huntley because he's the only movie camera man on this section of the upper river.

We've also got a hunch to propose to the Winona cameraman:

Why not film some of the beauties of the upper Mississippi banks; the bluff country up Black river and the hundred and one things which make this section of the Mississippi noted?

Star

GRACE CUNARD and Francis Forde, who will be remembered as taking the principal parts in "The Broken Coin," are playing at the Main street house today and Sunday in "His Majesty Dick Turpin," a two-part film. Louise Lovely and Lon Chaney are featured in "Dolly's Scoop." "Elevating Father" is a two reel comedy of the "L-Ko" brand in which Louise Orth and others appear.

Chapter of "Graft"

Hobart Henley and Jane Novak appear at the Star Monday and Tuesday in the newest chapter of the popular serial "Graft", a story with snap and vim. Each chapter is complete, although they are interesting to follow from week to week.

Majestic

"LITTLE MEENA'S ROMANCE," Triangle-Fine Arts play which pleasantly mixes comedy and drama, and which stars the delightful little Miss Dorothy Gish, will form the main Majestic attraction Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Owen Moore plays with Miss Gish, and the cast also includes Fred J. Butler, Robert Lawler, Alberta Lee, Mazie Radford, George Pierce, Fred A. Turner, Margaret Marsh, William H. Brown and others.

"The Last Laugh"

A bunch of Keystone-Paramount stars appear in "The Last Laugh", a comedy offering on the same bill with the Fine Arts drama.

The Eagles' musical comedy will consume the balance of the week at the Majestic.

Domedope

A KNICKERBOCKER Star feature —"A Daughter of the Woods"— with the popular Jackie Saunders holds the center of things emotional at the Dome today, although the Drews—Mr. and Mrs. Sidney—are to be considered in their "His Wife Knew About it." The "Mile a Minute Cartoons" bring a long series of laughs, and there are also some wonderful scenic effects.

"Angels Unawares"

"Angels Unawares" promises to be one of the best offerings of the north side house tomorrow. "The Girl and the Game"—always popular —and a "Bud" comedy, "The Guardian Angels" form the rest of the Sunday program.

Julian Lamothe, playing in "The Bond Within," the latest Selig-Tribune news pictures, and "Freddie's Narrow Escape", completes an unusual bill to be the offering Monday.

Tuesday's bill will consist of a Columbia picture released through Metro. It is "An Enemy to Society", Hamilton Revelle, eminent English actor takes the leading part, and is assisted by the dainty prima donna Lois Merideth.

"The Secret Seven"

Wednesday's program will consist of "The Secret Seven," "Dreamy Dud Lost at Sea," and a "Vim" comedy, "The Getaway."

Thursday will bring the Fox feature, "The Two Orphans," seven-reel offering starring Theda Bara. "The Man of Wealth" will feature Friday's program.

Bijou

MARGUERITE CLARK is closing a highly successful engagement at the Bijou today in the Alpine play, "Out on the Drifts." Although every Clark picture is a winner among La Crosse fans, there was probably never a more clever one than this.

Doro In "Diplomacy"

Supported by her husband, Elliot Dexter, Marie Doro will star in "Diplomacy," a drama of international affairs, at the Bijou Sunday and Monday. "Diplomacy" was Miss Doro's big stage success. Burton Holmes' Travelogues take the photoplay fan to southern California, the San Francisco and San Diego expositions. They appear on the same program.

A pretty story of a lumber camp romance in which Miss Brady is featured will be the Bijou offering next Tuesday and Wednesday. The picture is called "Then I'll Come Back to You." It is produced from the "best seller" by the same name.

"Poor Little Peppina"

Mary Pickford returns to the Bijou in the first picture which she has produced since burdening her small shoulders with a bunch of real Paramount stock. She comes to town this time in "Poor Little Peppina," an Italian play. She plays the parts of bootblack, messenger "boy", newsboy and finally the part of a young lady of refined tastes. Pictographs are also shown on the same bill.

Casino

ALEXANDER GADEN, new De Luxe Masterpicture star appears in the role of a youthful judge in "I Accuse," the Casino attraction today. Charles A. Travers makes a decided hit as a fiery-headed minister who loses himself in the throes of a fearful temper.

"The Accusing Eye"

"The Accusing Eye," chapter Number nine of "The Strange Case of Mary Page," a Keystone comedy, and the next to the last number of "The Mishaps of Musty Suffer" comprise the Casino's program tomorrow. "Musty Suffer" is seen holding down a job in a penny arcade as "bouncer" of undesirables.

Mary Miles Minter, one of the youngest and liveliest stars of both the silent and the speaking stage, will be seen Monday and Tuesday in "Lovely Mary." The story is told amidst picturesque surroundings in Florida, and is wound round the recent southern custom of the employment of state prisoners by private corporations.

"A Law Unto Himself"

Crane Wilbur is featured Wednesday and Thursday in "A Law Unto Himself." "Embers"—a problem play—with Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude in the leading roles to be the Casino attraction Friday and Saturday.

Strand

"A CLOSE CALL," another episode of the Helen Holmes "Girl and the Game" serial, features today's bill at the Strand. "Musty Suffer," a Keystone comedy, and the current Selig-Tribune weekly news event make up the rest of the day's movie events.

"A Night Out," Sunday's event at the Jackson street house, demonstrates clearly the superiority of the motion picture screen over the speaking stage. The picture is a "V. L. S. E." in which May Robson stars.

"The Greyhound"

"The Greyhound" is a thrilling story of a gang of ocean liner crooks —a new brand—which will be the Star's feature attraction Monday. The picture was shown at the Bijou with immense success. It has been reissued.

Tuesday will bring a winner in "Folks From Way Down East," a film play on the order of "The Old Homestead." "Lovely Mary" comes to the Strand Wednesday. "The Northern Lights" is scheduled for the Strand on Thursday. The picture is made by the Life Photo company and was taken in the far northland.

"Winning His First Case"

"Winning His First Case," a five-part Life Photo film, the story of a young attorney's fight with criminals in high life, comes to the Strand next Friday.

Film Men of The Northwest Prepare For Big Convention at Minneapolis Beginning Monday—Film Merger Rumors to Be One of Biggest Discussions of Four Days.

THE Moving Picture Exhibitors' association of the Northwest—the representative body of film men of this section of the country—meets in the city of Minneapolis for a four day convention beginning Monday.

Among stars who will appear at the big meet are Henry Walthal, seen here this week as the star in "The Birth of a Nation," and Edna Mayo. Carl Laemle, of the Universal Film company, is scheduled to be present. F. J. McWilliams, La Crosse exhibitor, is one of commiteemen, and H. H. Burford, another local theater manager, may be present.

The convention is an annual event, and is to be of especial importance this year on account of some big film company changes which are rumored.

• • • •

AS PREDICTED, pictures at local houses this week were exceptionally good. "The Birth of a Nation" cornered the Majestic. Marguerite Clark and Blanch Sweet were the biggest people at the Bijou. "The Bigger Man" was a clever Metro at the Dome. The Strand showed all-features, among which was "The Chalice of Courage," an exceptional V. L. S. E. film. "The Ovol Diamond" and "I Accuse" were among the biggest attractions at the Casino. The Star offered programs above the ordinary all week.

LIMBS BECAME ONE SORE ERUPTION

Broke Out in Small Pimples, Itching So Severe Could Not Sleep. Burned Badly. In 10 Days

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I had a sort of an itching on my limbs, and at first they broke out in small pimples. The skin was inflamed and sore, and also red, and towards the last the pimples became one sore eruption. The itching was so severe that I could not sleep and I could not scratch my limbs because they burned so badly. The trouble lasted six weeks and I could not do my work as it should have been done.

"I saw a Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and I sent for a free sample and applied it according to directions, and it gave me relief so I bought more, and in ten days I was healed." (Signed) Mike Gager, Westphalia, Kansas, July 7, 1915.

BASS IN THE RIVERS AND STREAMS

My Dear Buck: There are many reasons for giving the black bass the title of "gamest fish of fresh water." For his size and weight he puts up as snappy a fight as any fisherman could wish for. Take a small-mouth bass in a swift-running stream and it will be a case of matching your knowledge of the fishing game with his keenly developed instinct, and at that, you have to keep your eyes open or he will slip one over on you and break for other waters.

As to main strength the bass, for its size, carries a larger package of that stuff than any other fish. Often when hooked it will plunge to the bottom and stick there to a fare-you-well. Nothing can budge him except your strength against his husky muscular development, and this puts a heavy strain on your tackle that often shows up a weak point in your equipment and it's "good-bye" bass. At times you will think that the bass has edged into a rocky crevice and has propped his strong fins against the sides to give his leverage, and believe me he has sense enough to do it. He is wise enough to dart around submerged rocks and saw a line or gut leader on the ragged edges and make his get-away. He will often go down to the bottom and imitate a bull pup, giving a series of short snappy jerks until something gives in the tackle line.

One of His Many Tricks

One of his stock tricks is to watch your line and the moment he gets a little slack, up out of the water he jumps and gives a shake that would make a fair-sized "muskie" turn green with envy. This is not merely a shake of the head as practiced by other game fish, but a strong jerky shake that brings into play all the muscles of his body. He does not stop at one jump, but will leap repeatedly into the air, each time giving a master shake of his husky body. After the first leap you may think you have lost him and start reeling in, when twenty feet away from his first flop up he comes again. This is his method of showing an amateur how a well developed bass loosens a hook from his mouth and unless you reel in that slack mighty quick "Buck" he will sure show you.

On His Way Up-Stream

The bass is always on the move up-stream, which is likely caused by the scarcity of natural food in the lower waters. He has no love for rapids or riffles and is seldom if ever found in them, but in the quieter waters at the lower end of a rapids or in the eddies on either side he is right at home. Although he does not like the rougher, swifter waters of the rapids and riffles, he will often dash into their frothy edge in pursuit of minnows, returning at once to the quieter water. The bass will also dash into very shallow water after some of the small fry, often in water so low that his dorsal fin will be entirely out of water, returning, however, instantly to the deeper water with his catch. In his up-stream migration he will often loaf in pools below the rougher shallower water of the riffles until rainy weather raises the water, making swimming better for him. Right after high water makes poor fishing in most cases, as the bass have gone up stream to new localities and the new feeding grounds are generally alive with eats carried down by the current and this gives him a period of easy feeding. As a rule the bass do most of their feeding in the shallows or below riffles, going to the deep pools for rest and digestion of his overfilled feedbag, at which time it is very difficult to coax him with any lure or bait.

Sports in the Moonlight

On a moonlight night the bass can be seen jumping up out of the water, having a general good time, just like a bunch of kids in the old "swimming hole." They are good night feeders and are generally close to the surface at that time. That they come to the surface at night was shown to me in a striking manner a few years ago. While frogging one night above a riffles in the Mahoning river in eastern Ohio I was slowly rowing across the river when something flopped into the boat behind me. After a few excited moments of considerable activity the flopper proved to be a three and three-quarter pound large-mouth bass, and the following night in practically the same spot, a bass, larger by half a pound flopped into the boat while the wife was piloting a bunch of suffragettes on a hunt for a mess of frogs. Later I fished this stretch of water with a moonlight mascot wobbler and caught a few strings of fine bass; particularly fine I though for such "civilized" waters.

Bass fishing in the streams, rivers and lakes will be better each year, as the steady stocking of all civilized waters and the rapid increase of the fish as well as the adaptability of the large-mouth to all waters means good bass fishing, which is a keen sport for anyone.

Questions and Answers

Question.—(1) What is the test strength of an enameled line size E and size F also? (2) Tell me the best method of drying these lines.—F. M. Answer.—(1) E size tests 28 pounds, F tests 22 pounds. (2) Run the line through a cloth held in the hand; this is sufficient to dry enameled lines, also occasionally dress the line with deer fat, it will work better and last longer.

Question.—(1) What is the correct length of rod for use in bait casting and (2) is there any rule to follow as to length of rod in comparison with the height of the user? Answer—(1) Length of rod is a matter of personal preference. I use a five-foot rod, and feel like a lost brother with a six-footer—better make it between five and six feet. Whip a couple different length rods over your shoulder a few times and you will find the one best suited to yourself in that way. (2) All bunk, get a rod that you "feel" is right, be you a shorty or a six-footer.

Question—There are so many artificial baits that one is largely at sea in selecting a set for the tackle box. What are, in your judgment, four good ones?—R. E. G. Answer—First choice a Jamison coaxer; second, white body red fluted Wilson wobbler; third, Midget woodpecker; fourth Dowagiac mottled green back, white underneath.

SEABOARD FEARS GENERAL STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN

NEW YORK, April 29.—A strike of shipping employes of greater proportions than New York has ever known is impending and may start Monday, according to indications today. If complete the strike would involve longshoremen, barge crews, marine engineers, and dockmen. The longshoremen employed by the American Dock company, Staten Island, are now striking.

A general strike by the stevedores, it is feared, would be the torch that will start the entire industrial conflageration and result in May-day strikes involving more than 100,000 men.

Two impulses are behind the present feeling of restlessness among the workers:

First, to have the employers generally recognize the unions and grant their demands for an eight-hour day.

Second, to get for the workers a share in the enormously high pay the shippers are receiving for their handling of ocean freight.

FULTON DEFEATS REICH BUT GETS CAUSTIC COMMENT

NEW YORK, April 29.—Even though he stopped Al Reich in the ninth round of their scheduled ten-round fight here, Fred Fulton, the Minnesota plasterer, is not looked upon today as the man who will take the championship away from Jess Willard. It was an ordinary mill, with neither man showing much class. Frank Moran would probably have knocked out either almost at will. As a championship possibility Fulton is considered a flivver.

Fulton's left jab reached Reich's head many times but was nearly always high, seldom going to the chin. It drew first blood from Reich's nose and made a cut over Al's left eye. Fulton then worked on the cut with right hooks and closed the optic.

Reich shook up the plasterer in the first round and again in the sixth with rights to the jaw. In the seventh and eighth repeated rights made Reich groggy. He came up in the ninth all but out. He reeled under the first few punches and Referee Bill Brown stopped the fight to save him further punishment.

Two La Crescent Boys Who Built Upon Gravel and One of Their Works

MEMORY takes wings back to a "palatial residence" in the suburbs of La Crescent, at which admiring townsfolk gaped and gasped. It had come up as in the night, and folk did say that Arthur Thompson, the "great railroad builder", had piled up a fortune in the making of the Northern Pacific, of which the price of his residence was but the small change.

Seems like "Biny" Lilly bought it later. At any rate, it was rather a clever little home in its time, some four decades ago, and it was some palace for a town like the La Crescent of that period.

And, further getting down to everyday facts, Mr. Arthur Thompson had earned more experience than profit in the building of the "S. M.", and had later made a little real money in construction contracts on the "N. P.", and other extensions westward. Hence the house in the edge of the wood, with which this story opens.

Of that house were many girls—dutiful sisters who prefer to hear none of their own names, but all about John and Bob, the men of that household.

* * * *

Here they are: John, top left; Bob, top right, overseeing this page which tells as much of them as a polite page may tell, and indeed as any page may tell, for one can't credit too much to the way old maids used to wag their heads over back fences, and even though it is still whispered that these twain had known velocity in high altitudes (going some, is the modern slang), best evidence is that they were regular men, of true Irish daring and gallantry, which of itself has an adventurous swing.

John it was who first gave local color of his Hibernian ancestry to these hereabouts. He began life as a messenger in the office of William Van Horne. That was rather an omen, for Van Horne was later knighted by Victoria for having put the Canadian Pacific through to the sea. When John Thompson worked for him Van Thorne was engaged in pulling the Southern Minnesota out of bankruptcy that had interrupted its completion. And if you want to see the residence of an English peer, walk over to the little brown house, N. W. corner of 6th and King, No. 148, and behold! For there once dwelt Sir William Horne, although it was before his Horne of Plenty came.

From Job to Job

John worked on the "S. M." contract with his father, and later with him on the "N. P." Then he drifted about. He had a way of getting good jobs, and of throwing them over as one drops a banana peel. In his various jumps he jumped to St. Louis.

In St. Louis John Thompson drifted into contracting. Street work, bridges, and finally the great St. Louis water works. Now right there is something of two-fold significance. For when the water works were finished John Thompson loomed up as a big man in the building world, and right in the home of municipal graft, while the whole world watched the spectacular graft prosecutions of later-governor Folk, John Thompson, the newest big contracting success, was not even mentioned. And heads and reputations tell all about him.

* * * *

Perhaps fifteen years ago John Thompson, the now successful contractor, returned to La Crosse to visit his people. There was a picnic at Lake Como, and as they lingered over lunch John told of an island of fabulous riches, lying unused in the sunny southland. He said he had a notion to go forth and conquer the island, and perhaps he strutted a little, and to be sure the family laughed at that droll, adventurous John.

John laughed, too. But he went away to the south and leased the island, and named it "Profit Island". It is in the Mississippi river, ten miles from Baton Rouge. It is twenty miles long and eight miles wide, and for an average of thirty feet deep it runs to gravel. John tried to interest southern capital, but southern capital laughed. John knew that a railroad-building nation must have ballast, and here was ballast for a nation. So John hung to his lease and went up to his ears in the enterprise. They had him holding onto the ropes in several rounds, but he stayed the limit, and won out.

Today Profit Island is the biggest little city in the south and the busiest. Hundreds of cars, a steamboat and a barge line, dredges, sifting machinery, hoists, its own telegraph system and light plant—everything to handle gravel. It has furnished every foot of ballast for the Illinois Central, just as a sample contract. It is worth countless millions. In a slack way it seems to figure that at a profit of 10 cents the cubic yard the Island is worth $48,000,000, and with its plants working constantly at capacity—well, make your own figures.

* * * *

Bob Thompson—we remember Bob better than John—Bob was one of the boys here during the nineties. Democratic leader, candidate for state insurance commissioner, always in the running for something in the minority party, which meant expense and excitement and nothing much. Bob liked it for the game of wits, and he had them and played them, but that's another story.

Bob ran the Union Tea store, but later launched into the insurance business, taking over the Union Central agency. He made good at it, and his "renewals" were just getting good when John sent for him. That was ten years ago. Bob went to Profit Island, and took charge. The climate nearly killed him, but he stuck. The velvet was not then pouring in, and it was real digging, but Bob Thompson was a digger, as brother John well knew when he put him on the job.

* * * *

That gets the boys together, and gets the reader ready for the real story, but just to grease the skids before cutting loose from old times, there's that telegram that Dr. Ed. Evans received from John Thompson early this week.

"Send me some potatoes like we used to get in La Crescent," wired John Thompson.

"He must think Phil Crow's still hoeing potatoes", said John C. Burns, who sent the potatoes to John.

You see, in the good old days, Bill and Phil Crow, twins of the "sod", lived bachelor lives in a hut by the La Crescent railway crossing. They were famous for their one and only crop—potatoes. They had but little land, and they had learned that in a famine potatoes are safest. They never took a chance.

It just goes to show how men grow into the biggest enterprises in the biggest fields without forgetting the little things in the old home town.

* * * *

But here we have the terminals—one served and one in the pan. Cast about you for an eye-ful. This one, at New Orleans, cost three quarters of a million; the other, at Dallas, will cost $3,000,000. John and Bob built the one and are building the other.

"S. M. water boy!"

"Union Tea Store!"

Don't it make you laugh?" Great oakes," &c. Talk about romance ~ the romance of business is the big thing that gets to one where one lives. Just read the rest as it was said by the New Orleans Item, by courtesy of which we have the surrounding cuts:

* * * *

"The construction of this handsome station, as well as the inbound and outbound freight sheds which adjoin it to the south, facing on Annunciation street, was the work of J. W. Thompson, of St. Louis, New Orleans and Dallas, whose suite of offices is in the Hibernia Bank building, and though it is not by any means the largest and most imposing railroad structure which Mr. Thompson has erected in his long experience in railroad contracting work it is the most modern and best designed and best erected piece of work which he has ever completed, in the opinion of some of the most competent architects and constructing engineers of the south. As it stands, the terminals cost upwards of $750,000, and it is the superior in many respects of any in the country, not excepting the larger and more costly stations at Dallas, which Mr. Thompson has under construction at an estimated cost of $3,000,000.

Its exterior is of classic design, being built of Bedford stone and brick with granite base, over a steel framework, with a concrete foundation, making it entirely fireproof. The most striking features of the front are the four Doric columns of solid Bedford stone, which stand twenty-four feet high and are four feet in diameter, extending from the tops of the doorways to the base of the roof. These columns weigh twenty-six tons each, and their erection was probably the most difficult and costly part of the depot construction. They add materially to the stately architecture of the building making it distinctive and true to type.

The station itself is 234 feet long by 64 feet wide and about 50 feet high.

There are three entrance doors to the main waiting room, which occupies the center of the building, with the white dining room on the Thalia street side, and the colored waiting room on the upper end. The doors are of massive frame, covered with oxidized copper, and open into a vaulted chamber, floored with Tennessee marble blocks from Knoxville quarries, set upon a solid concrete base. The wainscoting of the main waiting room is the finest Italian marble and reaches twelve feet from the floor, with a base of verde antique marble. The finish of the walls is satin spar of dazzling whiteness, and the elegantly molded ceilings are of Grecian design. Hanging from the ceiling are some 15 magnificent inverted bowl electric lamps, suspended by copper chains.

To the right of the entrances are the ticket windows, faced with Italian marble with verde antique base, which extends across the building. A distinctive feature of the ticket office is a handsome polished copper grip rack under the ticket window. The wicket of the ticket window is placed over a base of Belgian black marble, which is extremely rich. The furnishings of the waiting room are solid mahogany benches set on verde antique marble bases. A checkroom adjoins the ticket window.

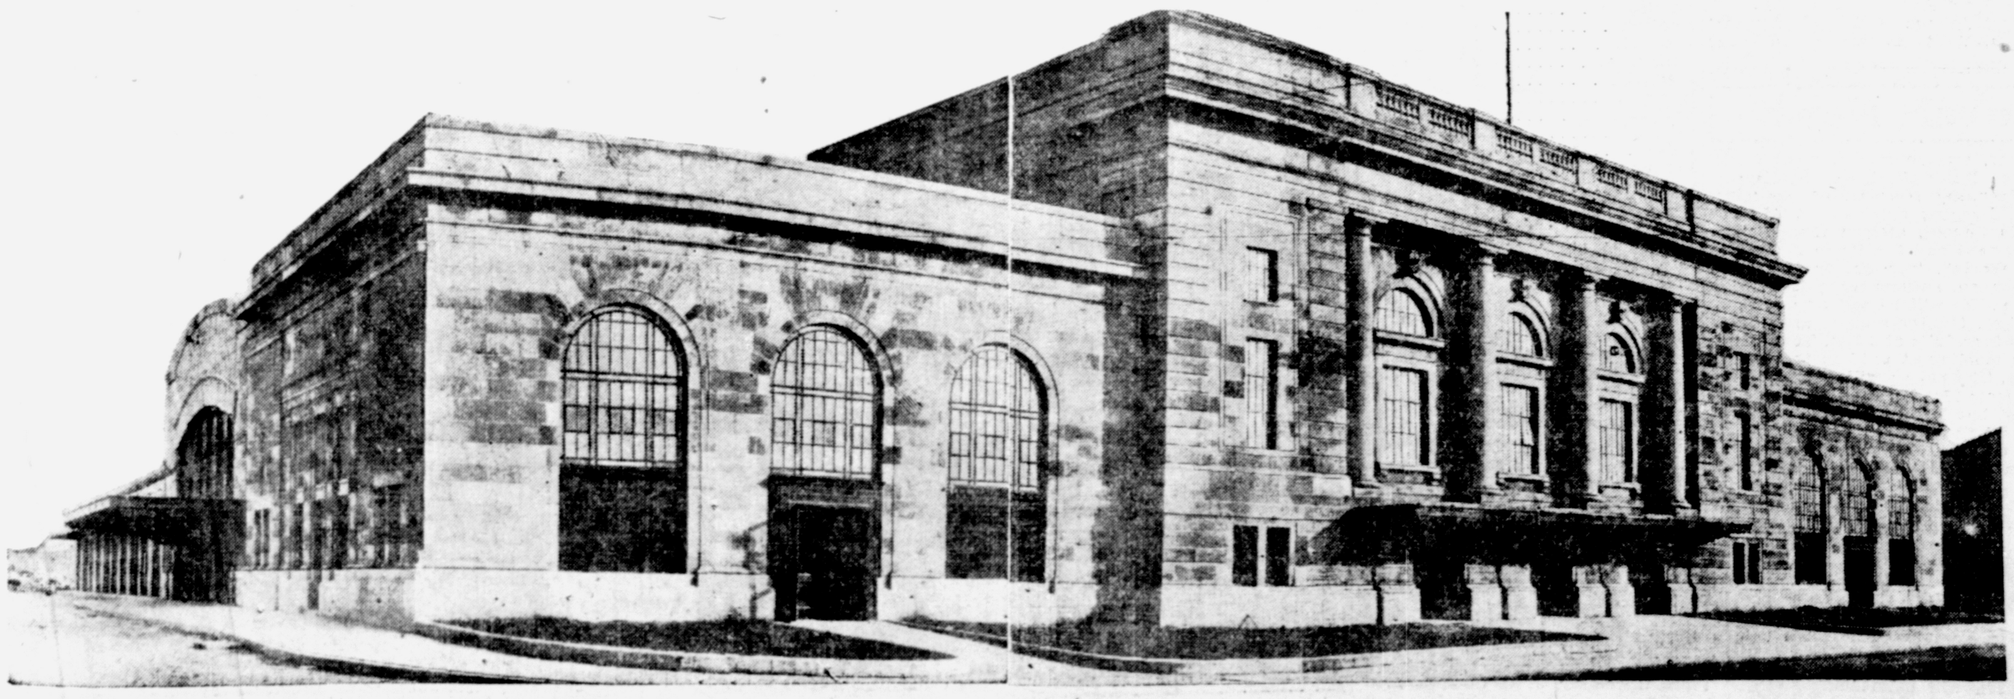

The dining room is splendidly equipped with every sanitary appliance and cooking utensils of aluminum so that every article prepared in the kitchen is to be scrupulously clean. The fittings are in tiling and porcelain enamel work.

In the rear of the depot and extending its full length is the Concourse, which, in many respects, is without an equal in the country. This has a concrete flooring and is sixty feet wide. The roof is of concrete supported by sixty-foot trusses, with an overhang of twenty feet. The entire roof of the station is of Florentyle concrete construction, covered with a combination of felt and pitch surfaced with gravel. The Concourse is also entered from the carriage doors on Thalia street, which give access to the entire width of the gathering place. The wall facing the rear of the depot is of white enameled brick. Iced water sanitary drinking fountains are also placed in the walls.

"Adjoining the passenger station, about 100 yards distant, are the inbound and outbound freight sheds. Between the station and the freight sheds are the sets of team tracks, where cars can be unloaded into drays for public city delivery.

"A portion of this building is two stories, and contains the offices of the superintendent, train dispatcher, division engineer, local freight office, cashier's and claim agent's office.

"A complete harmony of design throughout on the part of the architects, combined with the most careful and painstaking attention to even the most minute details of construction by the contractors, have resulted in a unified equipment second to none in artistic beauty and efficient public service."

THE "DEAR BILLY" LETTERS

Maytown, Wis., April 22 1916.

Dear Billy—

You remember last time I wrote you I was going to write Governor Philipp and ask him how he stood with the railroads but I didn't do it because I saw old Thistlewaite, the railroad agent. He likes Philipp, saye he met him down at the Railroad Traffic Managers' convention in Chicago and Philipp shook hands with him. Well, I asks old Thistlewaite what he thinks of Philipp for governor.

"Well," says he, reflectin' like, "Philipp stands shoulder to shoulder with the common people. Look what he did to the Railroad Commission. Didn't he appoint Alexander, master mechanic for the Milwaukee? Alexander knows things, let me tell you, he's posted and they need such a practical man on the Commission. Then didn't Philipp also appoint Jackson?

He's a lawyer and doesn't he know more about gas and electricity than ordinary lawyers? Why he has been a lawing for the franchise rights of the gas and electricity companies for twenty-five years."

Well, Billy, I didn't say anything to old Thistlewaite because I didn't know. You know I thought that the railroad commission was sort of formed to regulate the railroads and make lower rates. You know what I mean, with the public interest on one side and the railroads on the other. It almost seems that with Jackson that attorney and Alexander on the Commission, that it is a case of the railroads regulatin' the railroads and I can't see where the common people get a show at all. Maybe Philipp thought that the common people did not know very much about running the railroad commission, so he decided to let the railroads run it. It sort of looks as if Philipp didn't trust the common people. It's all peculiar to me but I hate to put confidence in a man who has no confidence in me. What do you think?

Yours,

AL.

P. S.—Maybe I am wrong, Al. Maybe Philipp doesn't train with that Railroad crowd and maybe he does trust the common people. I'll write to him and make sure.

Christian Endeavor

Topic for Sunday, April 30: "Using Sunday for This World and the Next." (Go to Church Every Sunday Meeting) Isa. 58:1-14.

Introduction: Each week comments on the topic written by experienced Christian Endeavorers of La Crosse will appear in this section. Rev. D. C. Jones of the First Presbyterian church writes this Saturday:

"Using Sunday for this world and the next." C. E. topic for Sunday, April 30.

The question of the right use of the Sabbath is not as hard to solve as some people think. Remember that its proper use is called for and demanded in the Ten Commandments: that the same God who said "Thou shalt not steal," "Thou shalt not kill," also said "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." The word holy gives us the real thought of this commandment. Holy means to set apart for a special purpose. The Sabbath day is a portion of our time to be set apart for a special purpose. It is for rest of body and for the moral and spiritual culture of the souls. Anything that lowers the vitality and working power of the body is to be avoided. Any form of spending Sunday that strengthens our moral nature and gives us a clearer conception of right and wrong is to be commended. The Christian church has had a long experience in experimenting on the best use to make of the Sabbath day. The church is now willing to set the experience and life of any person who observes the Sabbath according to the word of God, or against the experience and life of those who misuse it and leave it to their own families, the community and the world to judge the results. Obedience to God's laws means rest, peace and prosperity. The Sabbath is made for man but man too often misuses this divine gift.

Man and His Troubles.

Only two kinds of people in the world, the man whose troubles are bigger than he and the man who is bigger than his troubles.—Minneapolis Journal.

Lived Over 100 Years

Abraham Wilcox

Abraham Wilcox, who has just died in Forth Worth, declared that he was 115 years old. His sons and daughters say he was 107. Until his last illness he walked two miles every day, and never failed to read the daily newspapers. He came to the United States at the age of 30, and worked on a farm near Rochester, N. Y. Later he owned a farm in Michigan. He spent many years at San Luis Potosi, but could not stand the revolutions, and he went to Fort Worth.

NORWEGIAN BOAT IS HELD UP BY ALLEGED PIRATE

NEW YORK, April 29.—Just as the Norwegian bark Snespurim was about to lift anchor from Stapleton, S. I., Friday, with a heavy cargo of petroleum for England, Fritz Steiner, a member of the crew, goose-stepped himself up to Captain Eskil Bloomquist and declared:

"This ship will never reach England with this cargo—not if I have to blow her up myself or set her afire. Hoch der kaiser!"

Captain Bloomquist kept Steiner in talk while the rest of the crew herded him into the cabin and manacled him. Then the crew made a careful search for bombs, while the captain, in full uniform, hustled to Assistant District Attorney Wood with the story.

Steiner's passports proved to be of Swiss pattern. He will be thoroughly investigated to determine whether he is to be classed as a potential pirate or is weak in the upper regions.

Epworth League

BY FRANCES DIXON

The topic for the devotional meeting of April 30th is "What Are My Prayer Habits?"

The lesson is taken from Daniel 6:10. The subject of prayer is one of the most vital interest to true Christian life. Dr. Frederick Robertson in a sermon on prayer has these very striking words to say in conclusion: "The Divine wisdom has given us prayer, not as a means whereby to obtain the good things of earth, but as a means whereby to learn to do without them; not as a means whereby to escape evil, but as a means whereby we become strong to meet it. There is one objection may be made to this. It may be said, if this be prayer I have lost all I prized. But one word in reply. You have lost the certainty of getting your own wish; you have got instead the compensation of knowing that the best possible, best for you, best for all, will be accomplished."

First German Methodist. Time of meeting, 6:45; leader, Miss Belling.

Caledaonia St. Meeting at 6:30; leader, Miss Esther Tuttle.

West Avenue. Meeting at 6:30; leader, Miss Edith Walker.

First Methodist. Meeting at 6:30; leader, Miss Constance.

Juniors

The topic for the day is "Ideals."

Someone has said: "You can do anything if your ideal—the thing you want to do or be—is big enough."

West Avenue. This will be the last meeting of the league for the present and will be led by the president, Irene Anderson.

First Methodist. The class following "In His Footsteps" will visit Jerusalem, Egypt and Nazareth.

Announcements

The Second Department of the First Church Junior league will entertain their mothers and the Woman's Missionary society next Friday afternoon with a missionary program.

Next Saturday afternoon the Second Department of the Caledonia St. Epworth league will hold a sub-district convention of the Home Missionary society and will be addressed by Mrs. Parish, one of the field workers. What she has to say will be of great interest and profit to all who can attend.

HALF OF NATION'S GOLD AT DENVER

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Nearly half of all the gold the United States owns is today stored in Denver vaults. Heretofore the New York treasury vaults have held the bulk of the bullion with San Francisco as the next largest depository.

Accumulation of the nation's gold at Denver, according to treasury department officials has been going on for some weeks. They admitted the recent critical investigation" might have had something to do with it."

Because officials did not want the fact that Denver is being made the largest depository to leak out, no additional guards, it is stated have been placed on duty at the mountain city.

April 1 there was $438,473,286.28 in gold at Denver. More has been added. The nation's total gold stock is put at $2,316,948,420.

DECLARE ALLEGED PLOTTERS' 'GARAGE' NOT REAL THING

NEW YORK, April 29.—Witnesses in the trial of Lieut. Robert Fay, Walter Scholz and Paul Deeche, alleged German bomb plotters Friday testified that the "garage" run by Fay and Scholz for sixteen months, ending last August was not operated as a genuine garage should be.

"Only the machines of the defendants and two others were stored there," said Emil Herzig, who owns the building.

The government is soon to introduce technical testimony showing how the bombs, placed on the ships were exploded by the action of the rudder.

ATTACK OF TEDDY ON DELEGATES TO BE OPENED MONDAY

CHICAGO, April 29.—The Roosevelt drive on favorite son delegates to the republican national convention here next month will start next Monday, according to plans announced today by City Treasurer Charles H. Sergel and City Clerk John Siman, who smashed the Shermal slate of delegates in Illinois by getting themselves elected. Both ran as out-and-out Roosevelt supporters.

Following Colonel Roosevelt's visit to Chicago tomorrow, headquarters will be opened in the Congress hotel and will be manned by republicans—not progressives. Sergel and Siman will be in charge. They plan to sign up delegates to vote for Roosevelt as soon as favorite sons begin to drop out of the race at the convention.

VILLA AGENTS TRY TO AROUSE NATIVES AGAINST AMERICANS

BY H. D. JACOBS
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

GENERAL PERSHING'S HEADQUARTERS, NEAR NAMINQUIPA, Mex., April 29.—Villa sympathizers in towns along the Mexican Northwestern railroad have been actively engaged in trying to arouse the natives against the American troops, according to wireless reports received at headquarters today from the expedition's advanced base near San Antonio, Mex.

This in connection with the Parral incident and Major Howze's report that the citizens of La Joya, Rosario, and Santa Cruz ambushed his column, showed the necessity of shortening his line of communications and having an understanding with the Carranza government before driving farther south into Mexico.

The San Antonio wireless also reported further concentrations of Carranza troops to block the expedition's advance if necessary. Two trainloads of them passed through San Antonio, enroute to Cusihuiriachic, Temachic and Santa Tomas to reinforce the garrison here. The movement of troops was ordered ostensibly to quell any anti-American demonstrations inspired by the Villista agents.

In the lunch baskets will be sawed off shotguns, dismantled machine guns, hand grenades, and other deadly missiles. As soon as the disguised raiders get across the line they will assemble in military units. No less than 150,000 are to take part and will act concertedly all the way from Milwaukee to Maine.

TRENTON, N. J., April 29.—Complete returns for delegates from the second New Jersey congressional district in the republican primaries show that William F. Cozart, a Negro waiter, in a hotel of Atlantic City, a supporter of Theodore Roosevelt, has won out as one of the two delegates to the national convention over Richard M. Moore of Bridgeton.

The world may owe every man a living, but a lot of them haven't sense enough to show up on pay day.

REDFIELD CALLS U. S. HOGGISH

WASHINGTON, April 29.—"Uncle Sam, manufacturer, is trying to take care of more orders than he is physically equipped to fill."

Except for the foregoing condition, commerce, foreign and domestic, is the best it has been in years, Secretary of Commerce Redfield said Friday in an interview with the United Press. Time, and an adequate merchant marine, are the only remedies necessary to make commerce of the United States ascend to dizzy heights in bulk and value of shipping.

That the European war proved a big incentive to foreign commerce of the U. S., is shown in statistics given by the secretary.

DESPONDENT GIRL ENDS LIFE UNDER WHEELS OF TRAIN

OMAHA, Neb., April 29.—Miss Rosie Vlach, a Bohemian girl, despondent because she soon was to become a mother and had been abandoned by her sweetheart, ended her life Thursday night under the wheels of a train near here. Her body, the head severed, was found near the track. A bouquet of wild flowers she had plucked lay with her hat and coat nearby.

Police believe she committed suicide, but are seeking her sweetheart, Ludvik Kozacek.

Constancy Imperative.

The secret of success is constancy of purpose.—Disraeli.

HEAVIEST WOMAN IN STATE BURIED AT GALESVILLE

Funeral services for Miss Irma Dale, whose weight of 481 pounds is believed to have entitled her to the position of the largest woman in Wisconsin, were held from the home of her father, William Dale, at Council Bay, near Holmen at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Rev. A. S. Gilbert, pastor of the Methodist church at Onalaska officiated. Many friends of Miss Dale were present.

Miss Dale, who was twenty years of age, has been unable to leave her home for some time, and she had a host of friends who came to her home at close intervals.

Burial was made at the Galesville cemetery.

If our neighbors would mind their own business we would be more apt to mind ours.

Miners' Wages Raised

In the western mining centers wages have been boosted again. Miners are so scarce in the Telluride district of Colorado that the authorities are appealing for help.

From San Francisco, Labor Leader P. H. McCarthy reports:

"There are not enough wage increases in sight here to buy the hole in the middle of a doughnut. No strikes are impending—we leave such fancy business to easterners. Here we do things. We rebuild the city without a strike, built the exposition without a strike, and don't intend to strike now."

The St. Louis Central Trades union reports the best year from the standpoint of labor in decades.

Detroit labor leaders say the wages paid there are the highest in history, with a good demand for both skilled and unskilled workers.

MAY-DAY WILL SEE MANY WORKERS OUT DESPITE MANY WAGE INCREASES

Labor Strikes Impending or in force

	Men
Anthracite coal miners	175,000
New York cloakmakers	200,000
International Harvester workers, Chicago	3,000
International Harvester workers, Milwaukee	200
Shopworkers, C. M. & St. Paul railway	1,400
Cincinnati machinists	3,000
American Print company workers, Fall River	150
Hat workers, Philadelphia	400
Mill-hands, Philadelphia	800
Minneapolis Steel and Machine workers	100
Westinghouse workers at Pittsburgh	30,000
Pittsburgh car men	3,100
Pittsburgh munitions workers, (asking 8-hour day)	70,000
Detroit machinists (other than in auto shops)	1,000
Baltimore grain elevator workers	600
Cleveland teamsters	750
Youngstown, (Ohio), machinists and helpers	15,350
Coal miners, Belmont and Jefferson counties, Ohio	3,000
Laundry workers, San Pedro, Cal.	50
Total number of men affected	508,100

NEW YORK, April 29.—May-day will usher in an unprecedented labor situation in the United States. The day formerly marked in Europe by labor disturbances, will dawn in the United States with Mr. American Laboring Man taking his dinner pail and hustling off to his work knowing that from that time on he will draw down a daily increase of $204,616 in wages.

Statistics gathered by the United Press today show that wage increases affecting 692,500 workers and totalling $5,368,872 monthly, or $64,426,464 a year, will go into effect on May 1. At the same time, strikes, lockouts and labor troubles, impending or in force, will affect 706,500 workers.

Foremost in the wage increases which will become effective May 1 are those granted by the United States Steel corporation—250,000 men at a monthly increase in the payroll of $1,660,000; a further boost to Bethlehem Steel company employes, affecting 24,000 men and adding $170,000 to the monthly payroll; Pittsburg District coal miners, 40,000 men, boosting the monthly roll $215,000.

Want Eight-Hour Day

The eight-hour day is the rock on which the workers and employers have split in most of the impending or pending strikes. The crisis in the demand of 175,000 anthracite coal miners, asking recognition of the union and an eight-hour day, may come Monday.

A lockout of cloakmakers in New York is expected by Wednesday to result in a strike of 200,000 cloakmakers and garment makers.

Brooklyn stevedores tugboat men, dock men and marine engineers are all involved in disputes with their employers over wage scales and union hours.

Munitions workers in and around Pittsburg, including the Westinghouse plant, are planning to force an eight-hour day, possibly by a strike which would involve at least 70,000 and possibly more men.

Unique in labor records is the strike of 320 car men in Wilkesbarre, who have been out since October 14, 1915.

MILL SUES UTILITY FOR MOTORS' COST

Suit for the recovery of $7,038 from the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company was begun in circuit court here today by the Listman Mill company. The mill company claims that the light company is responsible for the cost of electrical apparatus which was placed in the mill in 1909. Storage is also charged to the light company for several motors and other apparatus which it is said the light concern has refused to take away.

Chicago Grain Review

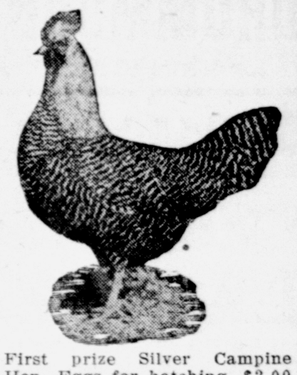

CHICAGO, April 29.—Bad weather conditions in Canada where the temperature has fallen as low as 22 in some places was a bullish factor in the wheat market today. A strong opening strengthened by outside markets, put all wheat prices up at today's close. May up 1-8c at 113 7-8; July up 1-2 at 115 3-4; September up 1-2c at 115 1-2.

Active buying and a strong wheat market put corn on a firm basis. May was up 1-2c at 76 5-8c; July up 1-8c at 77c; September up 1-8c at 76 3-4c.

Oats were fairly steady. May up 1-2c at 44 7-8c; July down 1-4c at 43 1-8c; September unchanged at 39 7-8c.

Provisions were higher on a strong hog market.

NEW YORK, April 29—The weekly actual bank statement issued today shows the following changes:

Surplus, decreased	$ 1,661,510
Loans, decreased	18,271,000
Reserve in own vaults, decreased	5,109,000
Reserve in federal reserve banks, decreased	977,000
Reserve in other depositaries, decreased	203,000
Net demand deposits, decreased	21,630,000
Net time deposits, increased	153,000
Circulation, decreased	43,000
Aggregate reserve	676,604,000

NEW YORK, April 29.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today said:

Aside from a sharp advance in Mercantile marine preferred, which ran up three points and more shortly after the opening, there was a little of interest in the stock market in today's early trading. First prices, with the exception already noted, were irregularly changed within a narrow range and the dealings were almost entirely professional. In addition to the uncertainties surrounding the status of our affairs with Germany and Mexico, trading was restrained by the short session and other week end considerations.

A further advance in silver imparted strength to the shares of the smelting and refining and silver producing companies but the copper stocks were generally irregular and some of them like Anaconda, developed a reactionary tendency.

Prices hardened in the closing half of the session under active professional buying, which was concentrated upon a rather limited group of specialties. Mercantile Marine pfd and Maxwell Motors advanced five points or more each.

Bonds were quiet and irregular.

The weekly reviews of trade conditions made by commercial agencies were favorable, but presented nothing of novelty.

MADISON COMES IN STRONG FOR K. C. BOWLING TOURNEY

With six entries alone, Madison bids fair to monopolize attention at the first annual Knights of Columbus bowling tournament to be held here beginning Tuesday. La Crosse will be represented by ten teams.

With Sparta, Caledonia, Red Wing, Prairie du Chien, Dubuque, Winona and Rochester represented, thirty teams have already entered.

That the Commodore Barrys of Chicago, world's champions for 1915 and 1916, will be brought here a week from today was the intimation today. It had been originally planned to bring them here for tomorrow.

HIGHS DEFEATED COLLEGERS AND PHYSICAL EDS LEAD

The State Graders defeated the high school men in a good game of ball on the inter-class schedule at the normal by the score of 6-4. Last night's game was the next to the last on the schedule. By suffering defeat at the hands of the State Graders the three year high bunch was eliminated in the race for the championship. The title of the school now rests between the Physical eds and the College nines, who are tied with two games won and one lost. The "rubber" will be played off on Monday night. The Phy ed men are slight favorites at present, but with the invincible Hansen in the box, the college men promise to make the physical directors fight for the title. Batteries for last night's contest: State Graded—Nyseth and Mains; High school—Lyon and Jameson.

Following are the standings of the class teams in the normal league:

	W.	L.	Pct.
College	2	1	.666
Physical eds	2	1	.666
High School	1	2	.333
State Graded	1	2	.333

In the track work last night Dr. Sputh had the sprinters and the long distance men run for time, but the stiff wind and the absence of track shoes in many cases resulted in slower marks than were set up last week. On next Friday afternoon the inter-class meet will be held.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's homers: Baumann of the Yanks, off Leonard of the Red Sox; Lewis of the Red Sox, off Keating of the Yanks.

Ty Cobb celebrated his return to the game after several days' layoff by banging out a double and a single. His double scored Kavanaugh in the seventh.

The Braves and Giants had to postpone yesterday's game on account of snow and Benny Kauff was unable to engage Cobb in a long distance batting duel.

It took eleven rounds for the Red Sox to take the measure of the Yanks. New York had the game sewed up in the ninth when Lewis cut loose with a homer after Hablitzell walked, tying the score.

Coombs and Bender, former teammates on the Athletics, engaged in a pitching duel yesterday. Bender now hurling for Philadelphia Nationals, won from his old pal who is with the Dodgers.

Outfielder Hinchman of the Pirates, made a double play unassisted when he caught Groh's liner and then ran to first before Chase could get back.

The Athletics were beaten out in the ninth when two passes, two hits, a hit batsman and an error gave the Senators four runs.

CUBS' FANS WILD WHEN FAVORITES TOP THE LEAGUE

CHICAGO, April 29.—Chicago fans were so blamed enthusiastic today that tomorrow's game between the Cubs and Cardinals is expected to smash all attendance records here.

The Cubs headed the percentage column today in the National league, as a result of seven consecutive wins. This record shattered all marks for straight games here since the departure of Johnny Evers in 1913.

Charlie Weeghman, the ex-Federal magnate, who owns most of the Cubs' stock, figured today that his combination of former Federals and last year's Cubs is going to take the pennant.

Manager Joe Tinker is after a world's record, he said today.

Max Flack's batting, together with timely swats by Heine Zimmerman, has helped the Cubs pitchers in victories since last Saturday over Cincinnati, Pittsburg and the Cardinals.

DREW SETS RECORD

NEW YORK, April 29.—Nine seconds flat is today the new world's record for the 90-yard dash. It was hung up by Howard P. Drew, at the Smart Set Athletic club games. The former record was 9 1-5 seconds, also held by Drew.

St. Louis forged ahead in the sixth, when Marsans was hit by a pitched ball and Pratt and Johnson doubled. Detroit tied the score in the eighth when Dubuc, batting for Boland, drove in two runs with a single. Cobb returned to the game on Friday and got a double and a single. His double scored Kavanagh in the seventh. Score:
